To Break Fear's Chains,
Let God Be Your Partner
In Those Hard Decisions

CHAPTER 9

"The commonest and subtlest of all human diseases is fear," says a distinguished physician.

A well-known psychologist declares that fear is the most disintegrating enemy of human personality.

Obviously these scientific men are referring not to normal but to abnormal fear. Normal fear is both necessary and desirable. It is a mechanism designed for our protection. Without normal fear a person would be lacking in ordinary and sensible caution.

BUT YOU CAN BE FREE from such fear. ABNORMAL FEAR CAN BE CURED. In this chapter we shall outline a cure that will work if you will work it.

A doctor, in boyhood, developed a fear psychosis. It grew upon him until by the time he entered medical school it was drawing off the energies of his mind so much that it was only by Herculean efforts that he was able to do his work. It put an abnormal strain on his energies which left him weak and ineffective.

Finally he consulted one of his medical teachers. The older physician, a wise and kindly man, directed the young student to a healer who, as he cleverly said, "keeps office in the New Testament."

"I followed my teacher's suggestion," he declared, "and that physician gave me a medicine which made me well."

And what was this medicine? It was not a liquid in a bottle, nor was it compounded as a pellet, but it was in the form of words. It was that potent combination of words called a Biblical text. "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind." (I Timothy 1:7.)

"I took those words," said the young doctor. "I allowed them to sink deeply into my mind. Their healing potency penetrated and infiltrated into my mind and in due course deliverance came, followed by a strange sense of peace."

But what is the "medicine" that is compounded in these words? One of the words is power. What power? The only power that can counteract fear is the power of faith. Faith is ordinarily thought of as theological, as the acceptance of a creed.

But there is another meaning to faith. It is something alive and active. It is a vital substance like sunlight, like the violet ray, like the growth of our beings. Faith is not only theological, but also acts as a medicine. That is to say, it is a healing property for the mind, the soul, and often the body as well.

By reason of its superior power, faith drives fear out.

The mind having been cleansed, the center of infection heals rapidly until a normal condition again prevails. This may be a curious way of describing the effect of faith in the mind, but this concept of faith as a vital healing agent has worked for so many that its validity is proven.

A prominent businessman came for an appointment. "Do you think I am losing my mind?" was his question.

"You look rational enough," I replied. "What makes you think you are losing your mind?"

"Because I cannot make the simplest decisions," he replied. "Throughout my business career I have handled matters of large importance and have made decisions affecting vast sums of money. But now the simplest and most seemingly unimportant decisions cause me no end of struggle."

"When finally I make a decision, I am haunted by the possibility I have decided incorrectly. As a result, I am filled with fear. I seem to be afraid of everything."

I GAVE him the following "prescription":

"When you awaken in the morning before you arise, completely relax yourself. Stretch your arms out as far as possible, then allow them to fall limply on the bed. Do the same with your legs. Also practice opening and closing your eyes by letting your eyelids drop lazily. Relax your fingers."

"Then conceive of your entire body as being inert, yielded to the bed. Completely let go. Allow all the tension to go out of you."

"When you feel that you have accomplished this, close your eyes and pray: 'God, I am going to get up now and go to the office. You are going with me, for you said, "I am with you always." I shall not be afraid all day long because you are with me. I shall have some decisions to make, but you will be with me, helping me, and the decisions will be made satisfactorily because you will be there to guide me.'

"Next, I said, "go to your office and after lunch lie down. If you have a place to do so. If not, lean forward on your desk. Put your head on your hands. Again relax the body and having done so, pray, saying:

"Lord, we had a wonderful morning together. We made some decisions and they are good decisions because you were with me. We are forgetting them now and I am not afraid, for you are with me. Finally, "Go to bed at a reasonable hour. Before you get into bed, throw up the windows, fill the room with fresh air, take a half dozen deep breaths, inhale and exhale deeply, slowly. Deep breathing has a powerful effect in reducing tension. Then get into bed and again practice the formula of relaxation."

"Then close your eyes and pray, 'Lord, we had a great day together. I wasn't afraid because you were with me all day long. We made some decisions and they must be all right, for you helped me make them. Now you will be with me in the darkness to watch over me. The decisions are made. We shall let them stand, and we shall have a great time tomorrow.'"

"THEN TURN out the light and repeat these words: 'He giveth His beloved sleep.' Then go to sleep. Don't be afraid of anything. On a sheet of paper I wrote "Spiritual Prescription" and outlined the above described process. A man with a great brain has the ability to be simple. I have never seen a first-class mind that could not be naive, simple and even childlike. An intellect that cannot react simply is not a first-class mind, no matter how profound a man may appear to be. This gentleman had a first-class mind."

"Take that prescription three times a day for two weeks."

I said, "Then come back and see me."

Today he is a well man. His mind is clear. He is not afraid. He is in perfect control and is having the time of his life helping other people.

A second ingredient in the medicine against fear is love.

Love is the natural, basic relation that a human being should have with God. When he does, he can move through this world unafraid. He believes someone is with him who loves him. He knows he can trust this someone to protect him.

If you are worrying about something, practice this little formula before you start out tomorrow morning. Stop for a minute and say: "God is with me. He loves me. I can trust Him. So I will do my best and I won't be afraid."

You can depend on this to work, after you have practiced it for a few days. Make this an automatic procedure and it will release a tremendous power against fear in your personality.

IF YOU REALLY want to know how to live, associate with children. If you have none of your own, borrow some. There are times when I would almost be willing to lend you my three, but I would want them back very quickly, for I would become very stodgy without them.

When our first child arrived, I was afraid to touch her, thinking she would break in pieces. I know now that they are not as fragile as they seem and have been convinced that a little rough treatment helps them. I was not quite so fearful of our second child. He was a little tougher than his older sister, but it was not until our third baby came that I was really released.

I found great pleasure in tossing her high in the air. I did not lose her so far that I couldn't catch her, but she always seemed to enjoy being tossed. As I threw her up, she would take a breath, and then as she came down, she would snuggle into my arms and laugh like a rippling brook, and then cry. "Do it again, Daddy."

I became amazed by the fact that apparently she had no fear. Children are said to have two basic fears—fear of falling and fear of loud noises; but she had no fear of being tossed. I think it was because instinctively she knew that the person tossing her loved her; therefore, she trusted him.

"Perfect love casteth out all fear" in her, so she yielded herself to the fun and was perfectly released.

DON'T SETTLE down to live permanently with your fear. If you do so you will never be happy. You will never be effective. There will be no success and happiness for you.

Remember, there is a cure for fear. Say confidently to yourself: "Through God's help and the application of simple techniques, I will be free from fear."

Believe that—practice it and it will be so.

TUCKER—Two lucky, lucky Douglasville lads sighed blissfully here as they roamed through a school auditorium overflowing with Georgia peaches (junior grade) from 27 northwest counties.

Quoth Kirk Lynn to Billy Daniel: "Those Future Homemakers are mighty smoo-ooth!"

Said Billy Daniel to Kirk Lynn: "And they can cook, too."

FHA delegates from District Four, bound by the DeKalb County line and the Alabama and Tennessee State lines, and the area including Columbus and Newnan, were representing 60 schools at an all-day district meeting here.

Talented and domestic-minded teenagers presided over sessions with the aplomb of veteran clubwomen, unperturbed by the presence of Douglasville Future Farmers, who aided the girls in a skit illustrating FHA aims.

"We have a few boys in our membership," State Pres. Jacqueline Smith, of Winder, pointed out. "None was a delegate today, but our membership is open to any student, regardless of sex, who takes home economics or related home-making courses."

The meeting here ended a series of district conferences opening FHA's fifth year. Mrs. J. M. Barber, of Athens, State FHA Adviser, met with girls here after previous sessions in Gainesville, Collegeborough, and Americus.

Georgia's 10,670 Future Homemakers annually hold district meetings to arouse interest in their organization and to plan the year's program.

Veep's Plane
Barely Avoids
Hitting Blimp

WASHINGTON (AP)—A plane

carrying Vice President Barkley came within 30 feet of a collision with a blimp over the Pentagon Thursday night, Bolling Air Force Base disclosed last night.

The craft is operated by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company. A spokesman for the company, Frank Getty, said the blimp was in charge of a veteran pilot, Capt. Walter Massee.

Getty said the Civil Aeronautics Administration had made an investigation upon the complaint of the B-27 pilot and had held that the blimp was not flying in any restricted zone, and was complying with the safety rules.

C.A.A. officials themselves would say only that an investigation is under way.

Massee has been flying in the Washington area for 15 years, and knew what he was doing, Getty said.

He added that the blimp was in constant two-way radio communication with the airport control tower, and carried running lights.

Skies of Blue,

Today may be a topcoat day, the weatherman warns, despite a blue sky and a bright sun overhead.

Fair but nippy weather is scheduled for today, the forecast says, with more of the same due tomorrow.

Top temperature today is predicted to be 62 following an early morning minimum of 46. Tomorrow the thermometer is expected to start at 42 and climb to 65 during midday.

Yesterday's sunny high was 67. The early morning low was 57.

Atlantan Shot to Death;
College Park Man Held
On Suspicion of Murder

By HOWELL JONES

A 26-year-old Atlanta man was shot to death early yesterday shortly after leaving a night club in West End.

The victim, identified by police as Gordon V. Gentry, of 890 Peachtree St. N. E., died at Grady Hospital less than two hours after a slug from an Army-type .45-caliber automatic smashed into his chest.

TELEPHONED WHISPER—SILENCE

Hello Girl Saves 4 Lives

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont.—(AP)—A faint whisper over a telephone line and then silence suggested to Mrs. Lena Reece, night supervisor of the telephone office here, that something was wrong. She called police, firemen and a doctor and sent them to the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Payne.

The investigators found four persons unconscious from coal gas fumes. With an inhalator they revived Payne, 24; his wife, Margaret, 23; and Mrs. Payne's brother and sister, Steve and Judy Yando.

A College Park man, listed as David P. Todd, 31, of 1617 East Main St., was lodged in City Jail on charges of suspicion of murder in connection with the shooting.

Police said the affray took place alongside the 506 Club, in the vicinity of Tift Avenue. Several persons were leaving the club at the time.

Uniformed patrolmen who were sitting in a patrol car less than 200 yards from the scene of the shooting heard the shots. The car, however, was standing across the railroad tracks and the railroad gates were down blocking the machine.

The officers left the car and ran across the tracks on foot and captured Todd about a block from the shooting scene. Officers R. V. Paschal and P. B. Green said Todd, driving a Chevrolet sedan, had attempted to escape by driving his car down a Central of Georgia Railroad spur track which led to Stewart Avenue.

The car had been stopped behind a warehouse building by a representative of the Central of Georgia Railroad, H. M. Day. Paschal and Green said they arrived just as Todd allegedly threatened to kill Day if he refused to allow him to pass.

W. M. Blalock told police he met Todd and Gentry in the 506 Club a few minutes before the shooting. Blalock said he and the two men came down stairs after the management of the club informed them he was closing up.

After climbing into the rear seat of the car, Blalock told officers, he heard two shots ring out, whereupon Todd jumped into the car and drove off down the spur track.

Blalock told Homicide Det. J. E. Hensley he heard Todd tell Gentry: "I'm going to kill you if it is the last thing I ever do."

George Azar, of the 506 Club, told police he asked the three men to leave because he was closing the club. He said he heard two shots and rushed down stairs where he found Gentry lying in the street.

Azar told police he fired three or four times at Todd's automobile as it started down the tracks, but failed to hit it.

Benefit Hike Ends Steel Strike Here

Atlanta's nearly-six-week-old steel strike ended abruptly last night when CIO steelworkers and the Atlantic Steel Company reached an agreement "based on the Big Steel formula."

The truce was called officially at 6:58 p. m.

"It includes the $100 a month minimum pension," W. H. Crawford, United Steelworkers District Director said, "with improvements in the sick and accident areas. The wage structure is not affected."

About 1,300 CIO steelworkers have been out on strike. Several non-union employees of the company had also been out of work during the strike. In all, company officials said, 1,900 workers were affected.

"We'll start rebuilding our farces Monday," R. S. Lynch, President of Atlantic Steel said, "but it will take two to three weeks to get back to full capacity."

"We'll call Monday S-1 day," he said, "and keep adding workers on until we get back to our original capacity."

Union officials have asked all workers to contact their foremen to learn when they are scheduled to return to work.

The strike began Oct. 5. At that time company and union officials were unable to reach an agreement on worker pensions and insurance.

The company had offered to announce the amount it would contribute to a retirement fund within 30 days after a settlement of the CIO strike against U. S. Steel.

Union officials said it was the absence of a "definite answer on the pension" that sent steelworkers on strike.

"The original plans have been discarded," Crawford said yesterday, "for a new agreement which is substantially the same as that with Big Steel."

The 460,000 United Mine Workers continued to dig coal in the pits, with full scale work in the bituminous fields under last following Lewis' Chicago order last week.

The steel strike cost to the nation has been estimated at $1,000,000,000. Effects will be felt to a long time, both by business firms and by the steelworkers themselves, many of whom went deeply in debt during their payless period.

Lewis Awaits Parley Call
As Steel Strike Dies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The steel strike continues to evaporate, but there are no cheering signs in the coal dispute.

John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers union, let it be known yesterday through an aide that he will be at his desk in Washington today "awaiting the convenience of the coal operators."

But the industry's employers showed no eagerness to talk business with the bushy-browed labor leader. The operators and the union leader are still far apart in their ideas of what a new coal work contract should call for.

Cyrus S. Chang, the Government's top mediator planned a conference on the coal strike at the White House today. There is no indication as to what, if any, Government intervention in the coal dispute will be undertaken.

The 460,000 United Mine Workers continued to dig coal in the pits, with full scale work in the bituminous fields under last following Lewis' Chicago order last week.

The steel strike cost to the nation has been estimated at $1,000,000,000. Effects will be felt to a long time, both by business firms and by the steelworkers themselves, many of whom went deeply in debt during their payless period.

U. S. Payroll Hits $10.2 Billion-Plus

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Raises granted by Congress boosted the Federal pay roll to a scheduled $10,200,000,000-plus for this fiscal year ending next June 30, an Associated Press survey showed yesterday.

That figures out about $227 for each Federal income tax payer.

Government records disclose the pay roll includes $3,574,000,000 in pay and allowances for uniformed members of the armed forces, and $6,640,000,000 for Uncle Sam's civilian workers.

The portion of the total payroll representing military expense actually runs up to 62 percent of the total, because the armed forces employ 925,000 or 47 percent of all "civilian workers."

The $10,200,000,000-plus which the government is paying to its 8,692,000 soldiers, sailors, airmen and direct civilian employees accounts for a little less than one-fourth of its $43,500,000,000 budget spending total.

But it makes the Federal Government easily the biggest single employer in the nation, accounting for about six out of each 100 employed workers and about $8 each $100 paid out in wages and salaries.

Administration officials say the personnel program can't be considered separately, but the scope of government undertakings determines the number of workers. Any reduction in the payroll, they contend, would have to come from a slash in government activities.

Government payroll costs are expected to go even higher in fiscal 1951, which begin next July 1. The recent raises will be in effect throughout that entire period. The current fiscal year was nearly one third gone before the raises were granted.

The raises, totaling about a half billion dollars, were offset in part by Congressional directions to "absorb" about two thirds of that sum by economies. In most cases, this means cutting down the number of workers.

The military departments were ordered to "absorb" all of the $330,000,000 raise voted for uniformed personnel—an order which may well have prompted the decision to release more than 25,000 draftees.

Only a small part of the approximately $170,000,000 raise granted civilian workers—who got a $500,000,000 raise last fiscal year—requires "absorption."

For example, the Budget Bureau, by direction of the President, has ordered departments and agencies to absorb the $1,250,000 raises given their 250 top executives unless they can prove that it would damage efficiency by doing so.

China Reds Said Near Objective In Drive To Split National Armies

CHUNGKING, China — (AP) — Communist columns, driving to split the Nationalist armies in two, were acknowledged last night to be only 25 miles from Kweichow, capital of Kweichow Province.

Fall of Kweichow, 210 miles south of Chungking, will practically accomplish the Red objective, it controls all except one extreme, a poor road between the Nationalist positions in Szechwan Province to the northwest and Kwangsi Province to the south.

The Defense Ministry also reported the Reds were attacking Yuyang, in Szechwan Province, 140 miles southeast of Chungking.

Gloomy prophets in Chungking predicted this provisional capital is an ominous phrase which usually precedes loss of a city.

The Military News Agency said radio contact was being maintained with Kweichow. This is an ominous phrase which usually precedes loss of a city.

'PRETTY DARK IN OKLAHOMA'

Swede Press Slaps Thomas For 'Marshall Plan' Threat

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — (AP) — Several Swedish papers yesterday slapped back editorially at Sen. Elmer Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, for his criticisms Saturday in Vienna of a Marshall Plan country which his colleagues identified as Sweden.

Thomas told reporters in the Austrian capital that the country to which he referred had snubbed his Senate Appropriations Subcommittee during a visit there and had damaged its prospects for further American aid. He said the country in question had "helped no one in the last 135 years" and that any further U. S. assistance "will be over my protest."

A headline in one Swedish paper called the Senator's remarks "a grave insult." Another paper said Thomas was "a liar."

The liberal Dagbladet Nyheter, Sweden's biggest paper, termed Thomas' statement "wadding nonsense." It also expressed some doubts as to the Senator's "mental acumen and his qualifications to represent abroad the mightiest country in the world."

Another liberal organ, Stockholms-Tidningen, said in its front page headline: "U. S. Senator rages against Sweden, which did not bow low enough for him—grave insult 'to our country.'"

Referring to Thomas' remarks that in the country he was criticizing anyone in a military uniform is a spy and that the nation had "grabbed" some easy money, Stockholms-Tidningen said:

"To this every Swede answers calmly and clearly: You are a boor and liar, Mr. Senator. And we seriously await the measures which might be expected from sensible and responsible American quarters."

Expressen, liberal afternoon paper, said that though Thomas is a Senator, his remarks are nothing to bother about. The U. S. Senate, it added, "is certainly a high place for all sorts of quaint characters and the most ignorant country politicians from the darkest corners of the Union. And it must be pretty dark in Oklahoma."

PERIL LESS BEYOND 3 MILES

Atom Blast Dangerous 2 Miles, Expert Says

WASHINGTON — (AP) — An expert on atomic medicine said last night that an atom bomb would cause serious injuries up to two miles or more away.

The expert, Dr. George M. Lyon, a member of the National Research Council's Committee on Atomic Casualties, put it this way:

"Few people who at the time of the explosion were exposed in the open within a radius of one mile would escape without serious injury."

"In Japan some people who had taken refuge in tunnel shelters escaped injury."

"Between one and two miles, there would be many serious injuries, and most of these would occur within the one-and-a-half mile radius."

"Between two and three miles, there might be many injuries, but most of them would not be serious."

Laborites Lash Out at Church Leaders' Comments on Britain's Economic Plight

LONDON.—(AP)—The War Minister in Britain's Labor government last night bitterly accused the Archbishop of York of "political bias."

The attack on the second ranking prelate in the Established Church was the first reply by a high government official to recent comments by ecclesiastical dignitaries on Britain's economic plight.

These remarks, while expressed in general terms, have raised the question in popular circles whether the Church of England is entering the political battle between Socialists and Conservatives.

The Labor government fired some of its biggest oratorical artillery in defense of its policies. Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, running the gamut of political hecklers during an address at suburban Woolwich, predicted Parliament will give final authorization this week to the nationalization of iron and steel.

On foreign affairs, Bevin said the Western powers have welded together nearly 60 percent of the world's population "on a thoroughgoing peace basis." That, he said, "is a great triumph."

War Minister Emanuel Shinwell, speaking at a Labor Party rally in Newcastle, berated Dr. Cyril F. Garbett, Archbishop of York, along with others who he said had made speeches recently "predicting dire events in the future."

The Archbishop, addressing his diocesan conference, warned that "an unavoidable" unless British industry can produce more goods cheaper to sell overseas. He called on the government to "make the facts known to all" on the economic crisis. He added that leaders of all political parties should join in a statement on the "extreme gravity" of Britain's plight.

Shinwell called the Archbishop's speech "a most deplorable example."

Other leading clerics also have expressed themselves recently on economic conditions. Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of All England, has referred to the forthcoming general election as a "gathering shadow." He told the synod of the Convocation of Canterbury there is a "need for united effort to overcome our economic plight."

Several Anglican Bishops have expressed concern over the economy.

The addresses by Shinwell and Bevin were only two of a number by Labor leaders to Sunday audiences.

Bevin, painting a picture of gathering strength among the Western Democracies, said: "Through our dominions, our Commonwealth, Africa, the Middle East, the Western Union, and with the Atlantic Pact, we have succeeded in welding together 600,000,000 people."

"Those 600,000,000 people are in one great multilateral area with one difficulty in trading with one another—600,000,000 people who never will find one another."

"They are associated with something like another 300,000,000 to 400,000,000 people in Europe and the Western Hemisphere who also will never find one another."

"The task now before us is to remain strong—and this is where I am against those who would upset national service or not make proper provision for defense—but never aggressive. Because weakness may be a temptation."

The Foreign Secretary was warmly applauded by the audience of 1,500 in his remarks on foreign affairs, but hecklers gave him a rough time during his defense of Labor's domestic policies.

He took the interruptions in stride, answering many of the questions shot at him.

He said he is "very glad" the Government is taking over the steel industry, which has set up high production records since the war. When he referred to the industry's postwar achievements, a heckler shouted: "Private enterprise has been good lately largely because of the willingness of men in the industry to work seven days a week, several in the audience cried out: 'And no strikes!'"

As the speech ended, he was asked where Britain would stand if America nationalized its factories and ran them at a loss.

"I am not certain," he replied, "but I think America at the moment has a budget deficit in spite of her wealth."

"Yet they are lending us money," a voice called.

"We held the fort from 1940," Bevin answered, but his words were drowned out with shouts of "Churchill, Churchill!"

Wherry Sees Defeat of 'Fair Deal'

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Taking issue with President Truman, Senate Republican Leader Wherry predicted yesterday that the people will turn thumbs down on the chief executive's "Fair Deal" program in the 1950 congressional elections.

The Nebraska lawmaker also disputed Mr. Truman's assertion that the Democrats' victories at the polls last week will make it easier to get the party's 1948 platform pledges enacted into law.

"Neither the Democrats' success in the New York senatorial race nor the Republican victory in the New Jersey governorship election are conclusive of anything so far as next year's congressional elections are concerned," Wherry told reporters.

He was referring to Democrat Herbert H. Lehman's defeat of Sen. John Foster Dulles, Republican, New York, and to the re-election of Republican Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll in New Jersey.

"From talking to the people—and don't mean the politicians—I am convinced that the main issue in 1950 will be: The survival of our free enterprise system or acceptance of the welfare state. I think the people are going to reject the welfare state and this idea of bossism by the Federal Government," Wherry said.

As for Mr. Truman's statement that the Democratic victories last week will smooth the way for the party's program in Congress, Wherry said:

"I don't think the recent elections will change the complexion

JERSEY RIFLEMEN BLUFFED BY GOAT

WANAUKE, N. J.—(AP)—A charging billy goat yesterday routed 50 rifle enthusiasts—all of them armed.

The group, assembled on a private shooting range, for target practice, ran for the protection of cars when the goat rushed from the woods.

The angry animal held them at bay for about five minutes, until one brave rifleman chased him off with a barrage of rocks.

Why didn't anyone shoot? Bob Elwood, of Paterson, who was there, said someone knew the goat belonged to a neighbor and requested that they "hold fire."

Bolivia Puts Crash Blame Up to Court

WASHINGTON.—(UP)—Bolivian diplomat Guillermo Gutierrez said last night that his Government has not tried to disclaim responsibility to the survivors of 55 persons killed here Nov. 1 in history's worst airplane crash.

He said it will be up to the courts to decide what recourse—if any—is open to the kin of the passengers and crewmen of an Eastern airliner which was rammed by a war surplus P-38 fighter piloted by Bolivia's Civil Aeronautics Director, Erick Rios Brixoux.

The question of Bolivia's responsibility in the case was brought previously before a Civil Aeronautics investigation board trying to fix responsibility for the accident.

The board hopes to recess its investigation today after questioning witnesses as to visibility on the day

Negroes Urged To Help Solve South's Problems

CHARLESTON, S. C.—(AP)—

There are no problems in the South which the Negro cannot help solve, Bishop Frank Madison Reid, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, said yesterday. He preached to some 5,000 church members attending the annual conference of the South Carolina District here.

"Men do not win by running away from problems," the Bishop said. "I am much in accord with Booker T. Washington's philosophy of 'letting down your buckets where you are.' There are no problems in the South that we, as a race, cannot help to solve."

"Why should we have to leave the South to get better wages? Why not remind the leaders of our communities that the more we are paid here the more we spend here? We would rather have millions in the South, who live in the South than to have all the millions in the North who live off the fictitious idea of keeping the Negro poor so as to keep him in his place."

"Let's get together and build a philosophy that the South really is a good place to live in. Let's create a sound economic order wherein all people are well paid; a sound educational set-up where all children are properly educated; and a practical Christianity based on the simple principle of the Golden Rule."

"These three abiding virtues will solve all our problems," he concluded.

E. German Pen Camps Seen Near Closure

BERLIN.—(AP)—An official of the Communist East German Republic was quoted last night as saying Russia plans to close her prison camps in Eastern Germany and turn all political prisoners over to the East German State.

East Berlin Democrats, in contact with their party's annual conference at Leipzig, said Helmut Brandt, East German Secretary of State, made the announcement at a party rally.

Two Crewmen Killed in Gale

SEATTLE.—(AP)—The listing freighter Calmar limped into port here yesterday with the body of her first mate, fatally injured during a north Pacific gale that swept another crewman overboard.

The mate, Clarence Hutton, 50, Valley Stream, N. Y., died a short time before the 3,586-ton freighter docked. The seaman lost in the storm was Walter E. Roberts, 23, Somerville, Mass.

The Calmar's master, Capt. Richard B. Hughes, Brooklyn, said a mountainous wave caused the death of the two men.

They were attempting to secure a lifeboat that had broken loose after the big deckload of lumber shifted early Saturday in heavy seas 40 miles southwest of the Columbia River lightship. Movement of the 5,800,000 board feet of lumber tipped the freighter seven degrees to port.

Joint Post Site Sought For Chiefs

Top Command Needs Meeting Place Safe From Air Attacks

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defense officials now are deciding where and how a joint command post, to which the military chiefs would move if the Pentagon came under air attack, should be built.

The study is a part of a broad precautionary consideration of the entire question of dispersing essential Government facilities if devastating air attack is threatened or occurs in another war.

The military phase of the dispersal problem was undertaken by the Joint Chiefs of Staff early in 1948 and this preliminary study now has moved into the detailed planning stage.

Indications of this was given by Defense Secretary Johnson in a letter to Sen. Wiley, Republican, Wisconsin, in which Johnson said certain projects of the Joint Command Post Plan would require appropriation of funds by Congress.

The Defense Chief gave no indication of the eventual cost or probable location of the Combined Command Post for the Army, Navy and Air Force.

However, from known military thinking and on the basis of underground posts used during World War II, it is evident the project is complex. Here are some of the angles that must be considered:

It may not necessarily be located in a mid-continent area or some mountain region far removed from Washington. This is because communication links with a command post are vital. Easy access to existing telephone and telegraph lines, preferably trunk lines underground, is desirable. Natural caverns or mines, with thick overhead protection, would be useful and cut down construction cost. These two features exist in the Appalachian Mountain range, part of which is within 50 miles of Washington.

NAVY 'CUSSED'

14 Vessels Jam Traffic In Chicago

CHICAGO—If all the Chicagoans who were angry with the Navy yesterday had been put in one group, the Gobs would have been in the best shore battle they've had since a soldier called a sailor a sissy in San Diego.

The inked citizens—luckily—didn't get together. They were in automobiles, street cars, buses, and elevated trains backed up for miles in all directions from the bridges over the Chicago River in the downtown area. There were large groups of pedestrians waiting, too, and if the air was blue, it wasn't because it was a pleasant day.

The Navy was starting 14 ships from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, and the first hurdle was to get them by the Loop district. With a priority on the navigable waterway, the vessels went through in two batches of seven. The first group delayed traffic 34 minutes and the second kept the bridges up 20 minutes.

To speed the operation, the 18 bridges from the Lake to Harrison street went up a approximately the same time and stayed up until the last vessel in each group cleared each bridge.

The vessels tied up for the night south of the Loop and today will begin trips to join the mothball fleets at Orange, Texas, and Philadelphia.

House of Lords Bill Due To Become Law

LONDON—(AP)—The Parliament bill, which strips the House of Lords of some of its authority, will receive its third reading and is expected to become law today.

The bill cuts from two years to one the period in which the House of Lords may block measures adopted by the House of Commons. Conservatives in the House planned to fight the Parliament bill to the end.

The first measure to be pushed through Parliament after passage of the Parliament bill will be the steel nationalization bill.

Two Beaten, 32 Arrested In Chicago Race Brawls

CHICAGO—(AP)—Thirty-two persons were arrested Saturday night and early yesterday after two assaults occurred in a South Side neighborhood where disorders have been reported during the last five nights.

Two men were beaten. Most of those arrested were charged with disorderly conduct.

Since the outbreak of sporadic street demonstrations in the neighborhood of the 5800 block of South Peoria Street last Tuesday night, 38 persons have been seized. Many of them were juveniles.

Police said the tension was stirred up by false rumors, which continue to persist, that Negro families are to be moved into the area.

Five Negroes were among those held after the incidents Saturday night. They were the first Negroes arrested in connection with the trouble.

Eight of the youths arrested earlier asked for jury trials when they were arraigned Saturday in Stockyards Court on disorderly conduct charges. They were directed to appear Nov. 21 in the

DeKalb to Air Move for 5-Man Rule

DeKalb's second mass meeting to discuss a proposed referendum to see if voters want a change in county government will be held at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the Court house in Decatur.

Sponsored by the DeKalb County Civic Committee, the meeting is due to be a progress report on the five-man commission movement. The civic group has proposed a referendum be held to see if the county favors a five-man commission instead of the present one-commissioner form.

Petitions asking for the referendum, given out at a similar gathering Oct. 10, will be turned in and consolidated. If all petitions were filled, according to leader James Mackay, they would represent around 15,000 people.

The DeKalb delegation to the General Assembly has offered to introduce legislation to call the referendum if there is "sufficient sentiment in favor of it." About 20 percent of the registered voters is considered the "usual" number required for a petition.

DEFEATED COLLEAGUE

One-Man Board Holds Meeting

SENECA FALLS, N. Y.—(AP)—This village's one-man school board said he "called a meeting of himself" yesterday and decided to ask the State Education Department to solve his dilemma.

Frank McCarthy, a Democrat, was elected a school director last Tuesday, defeating Mrs. Christine Cramer, a Republican who sought re-election.

Then it was discovered that he already was a director and still had two years to serve. Defeat of Mrs. Cramer left McCarthy holding both directorships.

Sole job of the village directors is to meet with directors from other townships to hire a County Superintendent of Schools. Harold Miller has held the District Superintendent for several years.

McCarthy said his meeting with himself was the only one he ever had attended.

He said he would ask County Attorney Harold Hartwell to seek a ruling from Albany. He has not consulted Mrs. Cramer, he added.

Election commissioners expressed the opinion that Mrs. Cramer would serve until next year's election. She could not be reached for comment.

Cheap Power From Rivers In SE Seen

MOBILE, Ala.—(AP)—Cheap hydro-electric power will be available in the future from development of Southeastern rivers, rural electrification experts predicted yesterday.

Some 600 managers and directors of rural electric co-operatives in Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky were pouring into Mobile for the start of their regional convention today.

Clyde T. Ellis, executive manager of the National Rural Electric Co-operative Association, and other national and regional leaders will speak.

REA spokesmen said they expect to get additional electric power in the next several years when the Jim Woodruff Dam on the Apalachicola River in Northwest Florida is completed.

Public power agencies long have been interested in the development of the resources of the Alabama, Tombigbee, and Coosa Rivers. W. Lyle Sturtevant, Alabama executive manager, said.

In addition to mapping plans to secure cheap electric power for expanding rural needs, the cooperative leaders are expected to call for improved farm telephone service.

The last Congress passed a law permitting the organization of rural telephone co-operatives under REA supervision, if adequate service could not be obtained otherwise.

Hospital Dedicated In Mississippi

VICKSBURG, Miss.—(AP)—Lutheran Hospital of Vicksburg was dedicated yesterday in ceremonies attended by approximately 2,000 persons, including Gov. Fielding Wright and other high State officials.

The 100-bed institution, built in 1928 at a cost of $750,000, was given to the Lutheran Laymen's League on Aug. 1 by its owners, Drs. W. H. Parsons, I. C. Knox and W. K. Purks, for maintenance through a perpetual organization. A $2,000,000 expansion program has been launched since the gift was made.

Dr. Walter Maier, head of the International Lutheran Radio Hour program, main speaker at the dedication, said the hospital hoped to strengthen the spiritual stamina of all who come through the institution.

Soviet Warmonger Charge Up for UN Debate Today

LAKE SUCCESS—(AP)—Russia's charges that the United States and Britain are warmongers will set off sharp debate in the United Nations today.

The Political Committee expects a two-hour session by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky to support his accusations, voiced repeatedly in United Nations sessions by him and other Soviet bloc speakers, as well as in the Soviet press.

Vishinsky's charge is the pre-

An immediate answer is promised by Warren Austin, U. S. delegate. U. S. and British delegations also were working to complete their joint resolution, countering the Soviet demands. It was understood that through it and the Austin statement would run this thread: Every provision for peace and co-operation now exists in the United Nations Charter. If these provisions are obeyed, no further pact is necessary. If these provisions are not to be observed, any further pact would be a fraud.

ACCEPTS MISSOURI INVITATION

Physician Breaks Away From British Health Service

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, England—(AP)—"Dr. 2108" has revolted against the British Health Service.

Dr. E. F. St. John Lyburn, who substituted his health-service number for his name on the shingle outside his office, resigned from the service and announced yesterday he had accepted an invitation to tell the Missouri Medical Association about State medicine.

"The invitation was made in the trans-Atlantic telephone call that got me out of bed at 6 o'clock this morning," Dr. Lyburn said. "I first thought it was a patient with a pain."

Dr. Lyburn, vigorous, outspoken man of 42, believes the crying need in all lands is the establishment of diagnostic clinics.

"The Americans are a great deal more clinic-conscious than we are," he said.

Dr. Lyburn decided to break away from the British Health Service after seeing a documentary film depicting methods of diagnosis and treatment in Britain. "I revolt against the antiquarian methods of medicine as practiced in this country," he said.

He said the British system, under which physicians and hospitals' fees were paid by the Government, had made overworked doctors superfluous and has wasted 65,000,000 pounds ($186,200,000) "on useless pills and bottles of medicine."

There was tragic waste of money and time, he insisted, because of inadequate and incorrect diagnosis. The weakness can be corrected, he said, by setting up a sufficient number of capably administered national diagnostic clinics.

RUM WITH BAND

FLENSBURG, Germany—(AP)—The first shipment of rum to reach Germany since the war arrived here yesterday. Thirsty Germans welcomed it with a cheering crowd and a brass band.

The 63,402 quarts of rum came from Batavia under a German-Dutch trade agreement.

In all lands is the establishment of diagnostic clinics.

'NOT VALID' TO BEG Reds Rebuke Czech Hamlet

PRAGUE—(AP)—Rude Pravo, organ of the Czech Communist Party, published yesterday a sharp criticism of the small town of Myto, because it keeps a "begging prohibited" sign on the outskirts.

Everyone knows nowadays, said the paper, that people do not have to beg, because the national insurance scheme provides all aged people—who had to beg in former days—with an income.

"There is no valid reason for such signs as 'begging prohibited' and we wonder why the National Committee (of Myto) keeps this remembrance of the past."

Ex-Sen. Campbell On Trial For Life at Conyers Today

Former State Sen. R. P. "Pat" Campbell will face a murder charge in Rockdale Circuit Court today.

The wealthy Covington businessman is charged with the Oct. 9 shooting of a Government employee, and former sailor, Eugene Edwards, at a roadside establishment near Conyers.

The 21-year-old Edwards died 20 minutes after he was shot in the head at Mom's Place, a roadside restaurant, six miles south of Conyers. The shooting is reported to have followed a minor brush between cars driven by Campbell and Edwards.

A special session of the Rockdale County Grand Jury indicted Campbell on a charge of murder and two other counts, of assault with intent to murder Thomas Womac, of Almon, and of carrying a gun without a license.

Solicitor General Roy Leathers has said he will open today's trial with the murder charge. Campbell's attorneys say they are ready. Rumors that the former Senator had been allowed to run free since his arrest were quickly denied by Sheriff Walter McCard.

of Rockdale County. "He's been in jail ever since we arrested him," McCard said.

The court is due to open at 9 a. m. today.

2 TB Drugs Indorsed By Specialists, 2 Nixed

Nearly 200 specialists approved streptomycin and a new drug, TB-1, for treating tuberculosis, but turned thumbs down on two other new drugs, neomycin and aureomycin, here yesterday.

The scientists passed limited approval on P.A.S., another new drug which has attracted recent attention as a hoped-for aid in the fight against tuberculosis.

Conclusions were announced jointly by leading specialists from throughout the United States as they ended the eighth streptomycin conference sponsored by the U. S. Veterans Administration.

The findings were compiled by groups of hospital technicians assigned special tests to conduct with the drugs. Results were reviewed by "jurors" of leading tuberculosis specialists. The conference combined their conclusions into its report.

Here are the rulings which will govern not only the VA and government hospitals but physicians throughout the nation from now on in treating tuberculosis:

Streptomycin—Improved quality of the drug and new knowledge of how to administer it have increased its effectiveness and lessened its dangers. A serious drawback is the tendency of patients to build up resistance to it. But other drugs can be used with streptomycin to retard this resistance.

Neomycin—This drug is too poisonous to use in large enough doses to have any effect on tuberculosis.

Aureomycin—This drug has no effect on tuberculosis in a human being.

TB-1—Use of this new drug in Germany and laboratory tests in the United States indicate it will be valuable in treating forms of tuberculosis which streptomycin does not combat.

P.A.S.—This drug helps prevent a patient from becoming resistant to streptomycin, thus making possible a longer treatment with the more powerful drug.

The conference questioned the value of another drug, dihydrostreptomycin, which was at first thought to have an advantage over streptomycin, partly because it is less poisonous.

The report went to great length to defend streptomycin, which has been criticized by the British Medical Association as being dangerously poisonous, and liable to cause complications.

"Improved knowledge in how to administer streptomycin and the improved quality of the drug itself have minimized the potential disadvantages," the report said.

"The dangers to which the British doctors call attention are well recognized in the United States. In so far as humanly possible, all safeguards are taken to prevent damaging complications.

"Our greatest problem now is how to prevent resistance from developing in the patient. P.A.S. seems to be part of the answer. The conference feels that P.A.S. used with streptomycin, with treatment extended over longer periods of time than now commonly practiced, will permit greater benefit from the streptomycin."

Group To Map Hospital Plans At Parley Here

Hospital planners and administrators from six Southern States will meet here tomorrow in a three-day conference devoted to exploration of problems attendant upon opening of new hospitals.

The conference, to be held in the State Capitol, will be opened at 9 a. m. with a speech of greeting by Gov. Talmadge.

Among the outstanding hospital authorities serving as instructors during the meeting will be Dr. John R. McGibony, Medical Director, Chief, Division of Medical and Hospital Resources, of the U. S. Public Health Service.

Dr. McGibony, a native of Greensboro, Ga., will conduct the opening session of the conference. His subject will be: 1. The Hospital Organization; 2. The Governing Board.

Also on the "first-day program" will be: Marshall I. Pickens, the Duke Endowment, of Charlotte, N. C.; David I. Spanier, Division of Medical and Hospital Resources, Public Health Service, and Jacques B. Norman, Secretary-Treasurer, American Association of Hospital Consultants, Greenville, S. C.

The conference, presented in cooperation with the Division of Medical and Hospital Resources, U. S. Public Health Service, is sponsored by State hospital agencies of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina and Tennessee.

John E. Ransom, Director, Division of Hospital Services, Georgia's Department of Public Health, will preside at the opening day sessions.

Acheson Tells Germans Help Decided Upon

BONN, Germany — (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson told a news conference yesterday decisions of the three Western foreign envoys in Paris should "contribute mightily" to German recovery.

He still did not disclose what those decisions by Britain, France and the U. S. were.

Acheson paid the first visit by any minister of an occupying power to this West German capital. American and German flags were flying side by side as he arrived on U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy's streamlined green and silver train from Frankfurt. A crowd of about 4,000 Germans greeted him with waving hats and handkerchiefs.

During his eight-hour visit it was disclosed that Chancellor Konrad Adenauer has been summoned to a conference with all three Allied high commissioners at Petersberg, near Bonn, on tomorrow to learn for the first time the decisions of the Paris conference.

Acheson said he had had "very satisfactory" talks with West German political leaders. These included Pres. Theodor Heuss, cabinet members, party leaders, the Allied high commissioners, a special conference with Chairman Kurt Schumacher, leader of the Social Democratic opposition, and a top secret talk with Adenauer.

The Secretary of State told the news conference the Paris conference which ended Friday, had discussed the policy of dismantling German factories for reparations, but had not discussed possible formation of a German army to help defend Western Europe.

He declared the United States had a sincere desire to help solve the "very difficult problems" of Germany, but said the really substantial efforts must be made by the Germans themselves.

World Food Stamp Plan Proposed

Hungry Nations Would Ease Gluts of Richer,
UN Executive Urges

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Sir Herbert Brodley, deputy director-general of the United Nations food and agriculture organization, yesterday called for an "international food stamp plan" to give hungry peoples access to the food surpluses which are plaguing more prosperous nations like the United States.

Moreover, he said in an interview, there seems to be a "very good chance" that some such plan will be worked out when the FAO's 58 member nations meet here Nov. 21.

The FAO executive council meets today to prepare an agenda for the international conference.

The chief item of business is expected to be postwar crop surpluses and what to do about them.

Norris E. Dadds, FAO Director-General, will present a proposal for an "international commodity clearing house" to channel food surpluses into underfed countries without upsetting world market prices by "dumping" the commodities outright.

Dadds suggested international machinery that would permit dollar-short nations to buy U. S. surplus farm products either at cut-rate prices or with I. O. U.'s.

In the latter case, the buyers would deposit sums of their own national currencies with the international agency with the promise of redeeming it eventually in dollars, when their exchange position improved.

High U. S. officials who have studied the plan for several weeks, object that the foreign currency I. O. U.'s would pile up and delay the day when normal world trade can resume with free "convertibility" of dollars.

Six Lost as Ship Sinks In Storm Off England

ILFRACOMBE, England—(UP) the Devon coast between Hartland Point and Lundy Island after flashing an SOS.

The 3,554-ton Spanish cargo ship Monte Gurugu sank in a roaring gale off the southwest coast of England yesterday with a loss of at least six lives. Twelve other members of the 38-man crew were missing.

Search vessels ploughed through the heavy seas to look for the missing men, but were forced to abandon the search when the early Winter night set in.

The Monte Gurugu was reported to have struck a mine during the terrible storm which brought distress signals from a number of other ships. However, the seas calmed by noon yesterday and the other ships radioed they were alright.

Reports which the British Admiralty could not confirm said the coal-laden vessel struck a mine. It went down about 5 a. m. off Noted Throat Specialists report on 30-Day Test of Camel Smokers...

NOT ONE SINGLE CASE OF THROAT IRRITATION due to smoking CAMELS!

Personnel director, Robert Lamkie

One of the hundreds of people from coast to coast who made the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test. His throat specialist's report: NO SIGN OF THROAT IRRITATION due to smoking Camels.

Yes, these were the findings of noted throat specialists after a total of 2,470 weekly examinations of the throats of hundreds of men and women who smoked Camels—and only Camels—for 30 consecutive days.

Housewife Mrs. Madeline Kugner, another who made the 30-day test, reports: "Camels agreed with my throat from the start!"

Famed explorer Nicol Smith: "I'm a Camel smoker from way back. I've found Camels give me the mildest smoke! Best-tasting, too!"

"Yes, I made the 30-day test. It certainly was fun! Camels make smoking a real day-to-day pleasure!" Ann O'Rourke, secretary.

"30 days of smoking Camels taught me how mild and good-tasting a cigarette can be! Camels for me!" Gib Manley, bobblehead.

Singer Judith Doniger: "I tested Camels for 30 days. My doctor's report was good news in my throat! Camels suit me to a 'T'!"

Vaughn Monroe, orchestra leader: "Camels are my cigarette! Camels have a full, rich flavor that really pleases my taste."

Betty Lytle, star roller skater: "My own tongue certainly proved to me that Camels have what it takes! Flavor and mildness!"

"My doctor's report proved what my throat told me about Camels. They're wonderfully mild!" Edith Seromberg, teacher.

"I'm delighted to find such a good-tasting cigarette. My test tells me it's Camels from now on!" Marylee Hahn, college student.

Traffic Manager Edwina Linn: "I'm sure glad I made the test. It introduced me to the mildest cigarette I ever smoked—Camel!"

Benay Yemata, recording artist: "Look like my 30-Day Test will add up to years of enjoyment! Camels for me for keeps!"

"Camels agree with my throat!"

IT'S FUN! Smoke Camels—and only Camels—for 30 days. Compare them in your "T-Zone" (T for taste, T for throat). Let your throat tell you about Camel's cool mildness. Let your taste tell you about Camel's wonderful flavor.

Taxes and Pressure Groups

Taxes will be one of the liveliest issues before the next session of Congress.

Mr. Truman sometime ago estimated the deficit for the current fiscal year would run to about $5,500,000,000. It may go higher.

Georgia's share of a $5,500,000,000 deficit would be about $77,000,000, or almost three-fourths of what the State government spends in a year.

The public is becoming increasingly concerned, particularly that such a big deficit should be incurred at a time when business is good and employment at a high level. If we let the Government debt pile up at such a rate what will we do if less prosperous times should bring about genuine need for Government spending to provide employment?

The President has indicated he would ask for more taxes in January. But prevailing sentiment among Congressmen, including Georgia's Sen. Walter George, favors a reduction in taxes instead. Sen. George has suggested that the wartime excise taxes be eliminated or reduced as a spur to business. In that way, he reasons, greater incomes will provide the revenue needed to balance the budget with present, or lower, tax rates.

Even now the House Ways and Means Committee staff is working on a tax revision measure under the direction of Chairman Robert Doughton, of North Carolina. Rep. Doughton says indications point to a downward rather than an upward revision.

Several Congressmen have indicated they would introduce bills in January to lower taxes.

Business groups, fearing greater taxes might slowly strangle business activity, have suggested budget cuts ranging from $6,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000.

It is one thing, however, to set a limit to what the national budget ought to be, and quite another to find some means of persuading Congress to stay within that limit. The difficulty comes in deciding where to economize. Congressmen, even those genuinely in favor of less spending, find themselves pressured into this and that project, often by the same groups which are most articulate in voicing economy demands.

We won't get less spending until the people become sufficiently aroused to out-pressure the pressure groups.

The Law Is No Respector . . . ?

Why does it take a vote of the entire State Game and Fish Commission before a warrant can be served on the son of the Solicitor General of Long County?

If there is reason to believe that this or any other person has violated the law, the warrant ought to be served as a matter of course.

And if, as District Ranger Chief J. J. Brown charged, the Solicitor General has threatened reprisal, then it will become a matter of concern to the proper officials when and if such reprisal is attempted.

We noted that at the same session at which the Commission instructed Chief Brown to make this arrest it was reported 138 cases were made last month for game and fish law violations. Presumably these were ordinary citizens without any political attachments. Did the Commission hold special meetings to pass on each of those cases?

The ordinary citizen, who is promptly arrested, haled into court and fined, cannot be blamed for becoming cynical about law enforcement when he sees such apparent obeisance to political power.

Gainesville Meets Its Obligations

GREEN HUNTER CAN NOW REST IN PEACE.

That was the caption of an editorial in the current Gainesville News discussing the decision by the City of Gainesville to assume responsibility for the operation of Northwestern Institute, a Negro school which has served a splendid purpose for the past 40 years.

"Green Hunter was a colored preacher who preached and taught throughout this section for many years," explains the News. "In his early lifetime there were few Negro schools in North Georgia and none above grammar school grade. Through his leadership the Negro Baptists of North Georgia founded Northwestern Institute on East Myrtle Street and successfully operated the Institute for some 40 years, providing education for colored children throughout this section of Georgia. . . . But the day of district denominational schools has passed with the State and cities providing more and better grammar and high school facilities for Negroes in their communities. . . . Of the 127 students presently enrolled, only two are from outside the city of Gainesville and none from outside the county."

And so Gainesville's Board of Education is assuming operation of the institution, using it as the basis for an expanded Negro school program in that progressive city.

We join with the News in commending the action which assures that Green Hunter's work, the advancement of his race, will continue. And we respectfully suggest that, in the knowledge that their community is fulfilling its responsibility to its youth—black and white—Gainesville's conscientious citizenry, even as Green Hunter, will rest a little more peacefully.

Will GOP Revise Its Strategy?

WASHINGTON—Returns from last week's off-year elections have left the Republicans a disconsolate lot. The gloom around Republican National Committee headquarters here is described as thick enough to cut with a knife. After the beating the party took in the 1948 presidential election, marking the fifth successive defeat of its kind in a period of 16 years, the outcome of the most recent balloting came as a further stunning blow. The much-battered old GOP elephant is a sicker critter than ever.

What is disconcerting to Republicans about the latest election is that it forces reappraisal of the line of political strategy which leaders had mapped out for the 1950 Congressional campaign, now in the offing. Under the new leadership of Chairman Guy Gabrielson the Republican National Committee had hit upon a program of going all out in its opposition to the welfare measures put forward by the Truman Administration. There was to be no more "Me tooism" in the GOP line of attack. The "welfare state" was a term the Republicans coined to define the issue.

New York, a pivotal and populous State, was selected as a proving ground for the new GOP strategy because of the special election there to fill the unexpired term of the veteran Sen. Robert F. Wagner, who resigned due to illness. The Republicans brought forth their biggest guns to boom the issue of "staleism" and the "welfare state" in support of the party candidate, Sen. John Foster Dulles, who had been appointed to the vacancy by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Democrats were quick to accept the challenge. President Truman himself delivered a speech in behalf of the Democratic candidate, former Gov. Herbert Lehman. Other Administration stalwarts such as Atty. Gen. McGrath and Secretary of Labor Tobin stumped the State in support of Lehman.

The issues of the campaign were confined entirely to the Administration's domestic program, since Senator Dulles had been a staunch supporter of the Truman foreign policy. The question presented to the people was whether the Government is to go forward with the various welfare measures that have constituted the main features of the New Deal and Fair Deal programs—social security, unemployment benefits, public housing, farm price supports and the like.

Chapter Two On Segregation

This is Chapter Two of a discussion. It requires a brief introduction:
On yesterday I tried to express an opinion. It was that the Supreme Court of the United States had announced on Nov. 7 it would render a decision on segregation in education. Despite that fact, none of the Southern papers had discussed it. This I believe unfair, if typical of a natural, human desire not to talk about what is unpleasant.

But it is so enormously important to the South, because of our population facts, that we will do ourselves a great disservice if we do not discuss it and think about it and recognize we are moving toward what might be a decision which would be of tremendous impact on us.

For more than 160 years the Federal Government has been aiding public education. There are more than 150 congressional bills providing such grants-in-aid. Some of the samples are: land for land-grant colleges, school lunch programs, funds to pay for veterans' education and so on.

Yet none of the 150 bills has been a direct or continuing aid from the Federal Government to the States.

The whole theory of Government aid has been, and is, even in the direct aid bills before Congress, that local control should apply to education within the States. All the Supreme Court decisions of the past which have impinged upon this problem have sustained the theory of local control.

Problem There is a very good chance, of course, the Supreme Court may again rule that the States may have separate rate school systems, but there is no chance at all it will allow discriminations to continue.

In the first chapter I expressed this opinion, too. It was that this is a chicken which may come home to roost. We established our own laws which say, specifically, that we are to have separate, but equal, school facilities. We have not done it. We have allowed to exist the grossest sort of inequalities in buildings, equipment, services and salaries. Not only that, but when a suit is filed to require the State to carry out its own laws, we make plans to fight it. This means we are actually defending substandards and our own admitted violation of our own laws. In other words, we are saying to the Supreme Court that not only do we discriminate but we intend to keep on doing so and will defend our right to discriminate with our courts. This will not stand up in court. Our case before the Supreme Court would be stronger if we could say we are trying to equalize facilities and salaries.

What I am trying to do is, not to argue pro or con, the right or wrong, but to create some understanding of what we are up against. Therefore, it must be said that the argument which says the Negroes pay too few taxes, in some counties about one percent of the tax total, is quite true, but not applicable. When we—not the Federal Government—wrote our laws saying we would have separate but equal schools, we didn't put it on a basis of tax payments. We couldn't do it anyhow. Many people with no children at all nevertheless pay school taxes. So the truthful statement that many Negroes, especially those in rural counties, pay little or no taxes is not germane, however truthful.

Our own laws, self made, say separate but equal. We are in trouble only because we have discriminated, and still discriminate. Assuredly the Supreme Court will take into consideration that Georgia is putting to defend the very bad inequalities involved in the Irwin County suit.

Meaning If the Court rules against segregation in education it would cause an immediate flurry of violent talk, or worse. But the law would remain.

Insofar as the grammar grades are concerned, there would not be much trouble. With, of course, some exceptions. There is little mixing of the races in schools in the East. There are districts are so arranged as to population that most schools are dominantly white or colored. The problem in high schools would be more acute, but there the South would work out its problem by having one or two schools on a nonsegregated basis and districting others.

It is quite possible, too, that in many areas agreement could be reached to maintain the segregated systems. Should the court rule against the present system it would disrupt the Negro system and cost many Negro teachers their jobs. So in many areas calm heads on both sides undoubtedly would work out an agreement which would have no legal standing, but which would have validity as long as both parties kept the agreements.

The colleges would really give little trouble, for at least a good many years. Most college student bodies have indicated, by straw votes, they would not be in opposition to receiving Negro students on the graduate level. There would be violent exceptions, of course, but it could be worked out.

It will be a Godsend to both races if the ruling is delayed for a while.

Again, let me say, I am not arguing. I am personally hopeful the decision will be delayed. But what I am trying to do, as earnestly as I can, is to urge the citizens and the leaders in all communities to understand the Court is going to rule. It may rule for the system, minus its inequalities. But it may, because of our discriminations, rule against us.

If it does we do not want it to be greeted with violence and empty anger, but with intelligence and with planning. We owe that much to our State.

I know it is not pleasant to discuss unpleasant facts. But we can't be always Scarlett O'Hara, saying, "I'll think about that tomorrow."

Actors Don't Always Eat

Actors' Equity Association has released some figures on the earnings of its members during the season of 1948-49, and even to one familiar with the economic facts of Broadway life they come as something of a shock. According to the report, almost half of the thespians in this country averaged $14.61 a week or less, and of the "less," one out of every four made as little as $5.86. This, of course, isn't a pretty picture—if you like the people in your pictures to be fat—but from long and lachrymose experience I've learned that nothing is to be gained by warning young performers of the assorted kicks in the slats waiting for them in the New York theater.

Helps Since there aren't enough plaudits and pesetas for everybody, actors are oftentimes obliged to do some tall and tempestuous scrounging to round out their incomes and bellies. For instance, one of the would-be Bernhards is currently licking the eating problem by boning up on statistics in the library and winning prizes on quiz shows.

Then there's the good-looking you've been reading about—the one who got herself a brush and polish, and became the town's first Shoe Shine Sally. As far as I know, she hasn't landed a job in a show as yet, but she's been collecting plenty of four-bit tips and, what's even more important, plenty of mentions in the columns and Sunday supplements.

Free However, the strangest case of miss-meal maneuvering was related to me the other day by a pert little slinger of a soubrette who came to my office to see if I had a spot for her in my cabaret. When she told me she hadn't worked in a year, I got curious.

"Boy friend?" I guessed.
The soubrette shrugged. "At the time I met him he was a meat carver in a rotisserie on Seventh Avenue, and every night on the way to my fifth-floor rear I'd see him in the window, slicing juicy chunks of cow and pig."
"One night when I was feeling particularly hungry, I went into my Orphan-Annie routine—you know, nose against the plate-glass and eyes sad and pathetic. And I must have been in good form because Igor motioned for me to come in, and when I told him I was broke he fed me four turkey sandwiches and all the French fries I could handle."

"From then on, every time I passed he'd wave for me to come in and have a free meal, and after a couple of weeks he asked if I'd go out with him on a date. Naturally, I accepted."

"Well, Igor—his second name was Kabolaki—turned out to be a nice enough fellow, even though he didn't know Rodgers from Hammerstein. He'd take me to a movie or we'd sit on a bench in the park, and not wanting him to think I was a stray cat I told him all about my family and friends back in Altoona. And I guess I was pretty convincing about what a fine town Altoona was and how much I missed it."

Dilemma "One night the big boob got the frogs out of his throat and asked me to marry him, and though I'd rather have gotten hitched to Boo-boo, the skating bear, I didn't dare say no—I was afraid it would mean the end of the free diet catesen."

The next night, when I passed the restaurant, he wasn't at his usual place in the window, nor the night after. But the following morning he knocked on my door, a silly grin on his big puss and a legal document in his hand.

"Is wedding present for you," he said. "When I hear you say how nice and pretty is everything in Altoona, I get in touch with Polish people there, and they help me find first-class lunch wagon. Yesterday I buy it, and now we can go live in Altoona and always have plenty turkey sandwiches."

"Did you marry him?" I asked.
"Of course not," said the soubrette, "but what a twist. I play along with this bird-brain so I can have a meal ticket while I'm trying to get a break in New York, and because my act's so good he buys a restaurant in Altoona!"

Don't Mobilize Cane-Grindings

A South Georgia sugar-cane mill is being pulled by a jeep. I always knew some day the mechanical age would go too far. Look, I can go along with progress as well as the next one. But this is ridiculous. The slow-plodding mule, laying into the harness, his ears resignedly flopping, is more than a symbol of mortal futility, more than an annual reminder of the fact that we spend the bulk of our time going around and around, never getting anywhere.

The mule at the cane-grinding is a cherished institution, an integral part of an ancient ritual. He lends a flavor, yea, an unmistakable aroma to the proceedings which can never be replaced with the fumes of burned gasoline. Certainly his hushed hoof-falls on the path-worn circle of hard-packed clay, in instantaneous rhythm with the melodic trickle of the just-freed juice, cannot be supplanted by the gear-changing protests of a laboring engine.

Scrap the black iron syrup-boiling pan, if you must. Haul the cane from the fields in a helicopter, if necessary, instead of wobbly-wheeled wagons. Spray DDT to keep the party-crashing bees away and use paper cups rather than coffee cans to let the invited sample the summings. But replace the mule with a motorized unit? No, No, a thousand times never!

Why, if they get away with that kind of heresy, it will just be a question of time before some of this ultra-modern crowd tries to banish the washpot at pender-billings.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

The Constitution welcomes letters on either side of any subject. They should not exceed 200 words and must be signed, although names will be withheld on request. We regret none can be returned. Address all letters to Editor Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

He's Sad

Editor Constitution: I have read with a sort of sadness Jack Tarver's column on Lillian Smith's new book, "Killers of the Dream," headed "Strange Tripe." It might more properly have been entitled "Tarver Tripe," for it is so completely in contrast with the opinions of a host of writers throughout the country who possess real literary talent and some sense of social conscience. Nor is Lillian Smith relegated to that small group of persons throughout the ages of whom it has always been said that "a prophet is without honor in his own country," because there are unquestionably millions of people in the South who rejoice that she has spoken out with both courage and conscience against the perpetuation of conditions which can in no way be reconciled with the teachings of Christianity, the standards of democracy, or even the principles of fair and just human relationships.

Labor and Lewis

Editor Constitution: Labor unions are grand things. They must be since everyone says so. Everyone I have discussed it with says I would probably be earning less than 50 cents an hour if the union had not made a contract with the company for a higher wage level. I am not doubting these statements. It just sounds like it would be fun to shoulder the burden and let the better man win. I for one would like to earn my bacon before cashing in the chips.

Many unions have done commendable work and I do not intend to criticize this. Yet it seems so pitiful how John L. can damage the nation for the sake of only one labor group. Will someone please tell Mr. Lewis something about democracy?

What's Wrong With GOP?

Editor Constitution: Following the Democrats return to power in 1948 and now after the defeat of Mr. Dulles and others, the Republicans are again asking the same question: "What's wrong with us?" meaning the GOP. Many answers have been given, including Mr. Stassen's about "Gravy Trains."

Mr. Stassen has been on field and in the game but he again muffs the ball. The people (the vast majority) are not looking for a gravy train in the sense that Mr. Stassen means. Therein lies the real nub of the issues and as usual the Republicans refuse to see it. The fact is that the people do want a train carrying gravy to every State and hamlet in the nation, stopping at every door delivering job-making gravy impartially. The people want equal opportunity for all. The people do not want special privileges for a chosen number. If and when the Republicans can convince the people that that sort of train can and will be run throughout the nation, the response and support of the people will leave no doubt in anyone's mind as to what sort of government the people want. To be more specific, the people want a government which can and will "restrain men from injuring one another." The people believe that government by law will fail if minorities can be made to obey the laws and to respect the rights of others. So, the people want an end to government run for the benefit of monopolistic pressure groups, whether or not such groups are in agriculture, industry or in labor.

The Democratic Party falls far short of doing these things, but it does try. Whereas the GOP, as a rule, does its utmost to lessen restraints and to weaken competition. A party policy which is definitely not in the public interest. And that, in all sincerity, is what's wrong with the GOP.

'Votes and Money'

Editor Constitution: I want to put in a word here about this Milledgeville business. It's true that votes and money matter more than patients do. Some of us "ignorant" attendants can see that all that ails a lot of folks here is homesickness and heartache.

I've worked at the State a long time and I'm hard to fool. These patients here live their folks more than their folks love them. So far as being dangerous, I feel safer in charge of my patients than I would around some guardians, unless they were handcuffed.

Guardians like that know what kind of place this is. They know that death takes place here every now and then. They know, too, that the public won't ever know how, either. I treat the patients as good as I'm let to. If I didn't I sure wouldn't be writing this letter. It's a whole lot more than some I work with would do considering one of us put these patients here.

Dislikes Peale

Editor Constitution: "How To Go Crazy in 14 Short Lessons" should be the title of the new series of propaganda claptrap by Norman Vincent Peale, says one young man on the streets. "Please leave off Dr. Peale's pretty face! That's insult to injury," says No. 2. "Peale's mixed-up jargon is as bad as Joshua Liebman's 'Peace of Mind.' I read that, though happy, and found Liebman quite miserable because the rest of the folks on earth were not as mixed up as Liebman. 'Well, don't read Peale's daily mixture,' says No. 3. 'Who would?' says No. 4."

What's the Hurry?

Editor Constitution: I read Mrs. Erickson's article in The Pulse of the Public in which she says she is among safety campaign's most ardent exponents. If she is that, I would suggest she arrange to leave home just a little earlier or a little later so that she wouldn't have to come in contact with those little children at West Haven School who do not have sidewalks on which to walk to school and are at the mercy of impatient motorists hurrying to get to work.

It is an awful feeling to have someone come running in and tell you your child has been run over, the same child who a few minutes before went out the door laughing and happy with his whole life just beginning. It is an awful feeling. Mrs. Erickson, to go out to the cemetery on a cold rainy afternoon and hunt a faucet with water in it to put in a vase of flowers.

Take your time and give the "kids" a chance.

GOP and the Political Trend

WASHINGTON—King Canute, as we know, couldn't sweep the ocean back with a broom. It has been fairly well demonstrated now, too—and last week's elections offered the latest bit of proof—that Republicans can't stop a trend, as it is called in politics, by shouting and shaking their fists and calling names and raising up bugaboos that just don't frighten the American people, who are a sensible sort. This trend, which has been going on now for some years, is the very simple thing of people wanting to get more of the good things which our American productive system—agricultural and industrial—can provide and, at the same time, wanting to be protected from the inevitable periodic adversities inherent in such a complex system and in human beings, themselves, such as illness, unemployment and old age.

Government has come to be a sort of governor in the mechanical sense of that word to keep the delicate productive machine in balance, to conserve and develop our natural resources, which belong to all of us, so that all can share in their use, to see that, in many ways, the strong do not take advantage of the weak, and the like.

Natural human impulses can, of course, get out of hand. Everybody can demand too much and combined pressures could in time, if encouraged by government, create an all-powerful government that might become the master rather than the servant, as Republicans point out. Also, as they point out, restraints are needed always.

The tragedy of what has happened to the Republican Party is that it is getting into a position where it cannot operate effectively as a restraining force such as is essential for a second major party under our system. It has lost public confidence.

This, it is suggested, is because it has taken such a negative attitude in Congress as a party in its now many long years out of power, despite moderately progressive platforms and presidential candidates during that time. It has consequently become identified by a majority of the public as "again" necessary adjustments and changes which it is the function of Congress to make, even though this is not the attitude of so many Republicans in and out of Congress.

In the last few months the most conservative element of the party has raised the loudest voice to the public. It has called for an all-out attack on the proposed reforms of the Truman Fair Deal which are neither new nor revolutionary. This is not even an honest attitude, and it distinctly is not fair to the party, itself. For when you break down the program, which is called "statism," into its component parts you find that many individual Republicans in Congress, and some outstanding leaders such as Sen. Taft, of Ohio, have not only voted for some of the measures—housing, minimum wage, Federal aid to education, Social Security expansion—but have actually sponsored them.

Senator John Foster Dulles, the Republican candidate in New York, took that "all-out" line. It didn't work, whatever else might have been involved in his defeat. Now, following the elections, you find three divisions of counsel in the party as to future strategy.

One group calls for continuation of this all-out attack. Another calls for formulation of a moderately progressive program that will become a party program in Congress. A third looks for a man who can win, a personality so engaging that principles and policies will be submerged in the glow. Accordingly, a boom is starting for General Dwight D. Eisenhower, who meets the specifications. That this is catching on is indicated by his top rank in the Gallup Poll among 1952 Republican prospects.

That might do the trick—if the President of Columbia University decides to recant on his famous statement of renunciation last year.

There is a chance, of course, that this might not be enough. Some sort of reform—moderately progressive, but not too radical—might have to be drastic to gain the very simple objective, which is to get a majority of the people to believe that the Republican Party, as a party, will actually carry out a program in keeping with the times, even though a restrained, moderate program in line with its philosophy.

Some man or group of men who could do this for the party would deserve not only the thanks of their party, but of the nation.

We can't afford to become a one-party country.

An Airlift for Tito?

WASHINGTON—A new airlift to Yugoslavia may be started if Soviet-inspired guerrillas attack Marshal Tito.

Diplomatic authorities here say Tito plans to build up his cargo planes and start new air routes to Rome and Paris—just in case. That is why the State Department has lifted the ban on shipment of commercial airliners and civil aviation supplies to Yugoslavia.

American ambassadors to the Iron Curtain countries urged this step at their recent mass meeting in London.

RED COMRADESHIP—Russian officials are adopting an air of wise-cracking comradeship toward foreigners that is surprising some American observers.

Typical was the affable and informal way visitors and newsmen were greeted to the Russian embassy reception marking the thirty-second anniversary of the Red Revolution.

Someone interrupted Foreign Minister Vishinsky in the midst of a bit of repartee and said abruptly:

"I suppose Soviet Russia will be planning an invasion of Mars any day now?"

Replied Vishinsky laughingly: "No, indeed, Mars is on our side."

In the past Vishinsky and other Soviet officials have been known to greet such pointed remarks with curt, aloof and stonified silence.

DISPERSAL—Watch for new signals to be issued by the Federal Government soon on dispersal of new defense plants.

National Security Resources Board experts are now preparing a detailed statement of policy in locating industries of war importance. They say it will be released shortly.

CHOP TAXES—Treasury tax experts are swinging over to Congress' idea of chopping excise taxes next year.

The department's legislative experts have in the works proposals to cut down excise taxes on transportation, communications and retail store items totaling almost $800,000,000.

However, top officials say the Treasury will also recommend a moderate tax increase in line with President Truman's plan for raising taxes.

Biggest boost is planned for the corporate tax level which would raise taxes on corporations, at least tentatively, from 38 percent to 44 percent.

Experts estimate this would siphon off from corporation profits another $1,500,000,000 for the government.

DOSSIERS—Munitions Board experts are collecting secret dossiers on possible war-plant saboteurs. They call it a central security file.

Their aim: To fight a possible organized industrial-sabotage campaign in event of war.

COMPLAINT—American cities are complaining to government officials that municipalities now are receiving only eight percent of the U. S. tax dollar.

They charge that the Federal Government hogs it all—$40,890,000,000 last year.

Do We Want Economy?

Sen. George, Democrat, Georgia, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, is on the right track as he reminds his constituents how much more they are going to have to pay in taxes. And Sen. Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, an advocate of Federal curtailment, expects an $8,000,000,000 deficit for the year starting next July 1.

A House committee is studying methods to reduce the number of Federal employees which now exceeds 2,000,000. The committee has already found one agency which was recently formed to take the place of four other agencies and now employs more people than the four agencies it replaced. When the agencies merged they hired a corps of co-ordinators.

It doesn't do any good to cuss out our public servants for their extravagance as long as the people keep demanding more parity. More subsidy, larger appropriations and personal benefits. Less greed and an aroused public opinion only can stop the Republic's plunge into national bankruptcy.

Of course, some of us feel at times like the constituent that wrote my good friend, Congressman Bob Sykes, of Florida, as published in Juliet Lowell's book, "Dear Mr. Congressman." "Your record since you have been in," he wrote, "is positively disgusting. You never met me so what have you got against me personally that you vote for everything I'm against?"

ALTAR STAIRS By John Marvin Rast

He was called the friend of God.—James 2:23.

Abraham, says James, was called the friend of God. There is no more beautiful word in the language than "friend." It has its root in the Anglo-Saxon "freon," to love.

A friend is defined as "one who entertains for another such sentiments of esteem, respect and affection that he seeks his society and welfare."

Such fellowship with God is not limited. It is open to all who like Abraham draw near to God by faith—faith that proffers life and substance for divine direction. Acquaintances many we may have but doubtless not many friends.

So with God. Yet He would draw all the children of men into His embrace. He would honor all with the title of friend.

O THOU who hast ever sought our good, accept now our devotion. Let naught separate us from that fellowship which is above all earthly attainments, through Christ our Lord.

Revolution in an Ancient Profession

WASHINGTON—A Seattle, Wash., machine tool company now is advertising in the funeral parlor trade press history's first automatic grave digger. This portends a revolution in an ancient profession; it indicates further that in this mechanical age nothing is safe. Every hour on the hour comes up something new.

Now we've got tablets guaranteed to cure colds, maybe. Razor blades your face can't feel. A machine that lays bricks. Paste that keeps holes from growing in teeth.

And all over the country suddenly there's a rushing business in shoes with built-in socks. Or maybe it's socks with shoes attached. These consist of leather soles with knitted uppers. How to wash same I would not know. Neither would my laundry man. He says he doesn't think they're supposed to be washed.

On the market is a wrist watch with an outside regulator; if it runs too fast, don't go to the jeweler. Just fix it yourself and not a bad idea, either. Cuff links come with compasses built in and, for the de luxe trade, with watches. One of the biggest shirt outfits has a white dress job without buttons; a concealed zipper does the trick.

A leading textile firm has gone into mass production with black pajamas for men; these are trimmed with dragons embroidered in metallic golden thread. They sound a little scratchy to me.

The coffee shortage has been good news to the tea men; they're readying large advertising campaigns and building vast new factories in which to put punches of tea into those little blotting paper sacks. On sale is a hand warmer about the size of a cake of soap for $3.50. A luminous bottle opener for those bibbers whose lights have gone out is available.

A while back I mentioned in these precincts the Los Angeles inventor who was marketing the self-heating hot dog. This was not all. He sent me a box of his products, which included coffee, cocoa, baked beans, hamburgers, beef stew and, of course, those dogs. I lined the cans up on my desk and punctured same, as per directions. Immediately they began to sizzle. No newspaper reporter ever had a bigger banquet, quicker or hotter. My only complaint concerned the coffee. Black, I like mine with cream.

A wholesale haberdasher has developed the hangover hat. This has an ice bag on top, ear flaps lined with cotton so the sufferer cannot hear, and a blinder so he can't see. Widgets which make round ice cubes instead of square are popular. It must be that round ice is colder than the straight kind.

A radio manufacturer has developed and is about to place on sale the all-white television set. This is for use in the kitchen. What it will do to the biscuits I shudder to think. I had a sneak preview of a couple of 1950 model automobiles the other day. These at least I could recognize. Fact is they looked almost the same as the 1949's.

The big thing in autos, the man said, is automatic transmissions. Some shift the gears themselves. Some have no gears. Some seem to operate like the old Model T, only smoother. By the end of next year he predicted there wouldn't be an automobile on sale without one. I'm not complaining. I'm just waiting, is all, for a car that steers itself and stops automatically at red lights.

Gen. Smith and Coming of the War

NEW YORK—The memories of his three years behind the eight-ball, composed by Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, our Ambassador in Moscow until last March, are one book in the long confessional shelf that I will not waste my eyes nor any man-hours on. The Russians gave him the brushoff and the run-around. What else did he expect?

The critical hour in this man's life was Pearl Harbor. He was a Colonel and Secretary of the General Staff under George Marshall, Chief of Staff. It will be recalled that after Pearl Harbor Roosevelt whipped up a "directive" appointing a commission under Owen J. Rohrer, a Justice of the Supreme Court, to determine whether "any derelictions of duty or error of judgment on the part of Army or Navy personnel" contributed to the horror. They brought in a report which was just what Roosevelt wanted. They held Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Lieutenant General Walter C. Short guilty of dereliction.

By the limitations of the "directive" they could not say whether Roosevelt himself, Stilwell or Knox had been even more guilty because they were civilians. And they pointedly did not determine what had been the conduct of General George Marshall, the Chief of Staff; Admiral Harold R. Stark, the Chief of Naval Operations; Col. Smith and others stationed in Washington.

What has Smith to do with this? I refer to a book, "Pearl Harbor, the Story of the Secret War," by George Morgenstern, published by Devin-Adair, of New York, in 1947. This is a great historical record. It has never been faulted in any important particular although a few minor errors might reasonably be expected because Morgenstern did an enormous work of searching out, studying and elucidating the deliberately tangled and often contradictory record. Every charge is supported beyond challenge by the record of subsequent investigation and testimony. The volume and confusion were such, however, that the public could not grasp it all. That is why the book is a priceless compendium.

It was clear to President Roosevelt on the night of Dec. 6 (Saturday night), that war was at hand," Morgenstern wrote. "The story of Roosevelt's response to the first 13 parts of the Japanese reply to Hull's counter-proposals was finally told to the Congressional Committee on Feb. 15, 1946, by Comdr. L. R. Schulz, Assistant Naval Aide at the White House in the closing months of 1941. For four years, no one had ever sought out Schulz or tried to learn what went on at the White House the night before the attack. On Feb. 12, 1946, Senator Ferguson succeeded in having Schulz called as a witness. It developed that about 9:30 p. m., Dec. 6, Schulz 'unlocked' a pouch and gave Roosevelt an important message from the Navy Department which he, Schulz, had been warned to expect.

Roosevelt read it and exclaimed: "This means war."

"From Schulz's account," Morgenstern continues, "it is known that Roosevelt reached for the telephone and tried to get Admiral Stark."

Stark was at the theater and Roosevelt decided not to have him paged lest the public be alarmed. In Hawaii, Kimmel and Short were sitting with a third-rate alert in force, forbidden to take all-out precautions lest they alarm the public.

"What went on at the White House and among the officials of the Government and of the Army and Navy High Commands that night is a mystery which still awaits solution," Morgenstern continues. "The night of Dec. 6 was the most important in their lives. It is almost inconceivable that the witnesses still alive can have forgotten what happened. But General Marshall and Admiral Stark repeatedly testified under oath that they cannot remember. They had absolute knowledge that war was at hand. Yet they professed not to be able to recall where they were, what they did and whom they saw."

"At 9 a. m., Dec. 7, Capt. Kramer delivered the complete 14-part Jap message to Stark. After reading it, the Admiral is supposed to have exclaimed: 'My God! This means war. I must get word to Kimmel at once.' He did not do so. He spent 2½ hours trying to get General Marshall. It was not until 11:58 a. m., that they drafted the message to be sent to Short. Stark made no effort to communicate with Kimmel."

"Marshall had no recollection of having left his quarters at Fort Myer. He insisted that the first 13 parts of the Japanese message were not brought to his attention on Dec. 6."

"The Army Board of Inquiry makes clear in its report that Gen. Smith was indifferent or derelict in the handling of the 13-part Jap message on the night of the sixth. Smith's behavior was the more incomprehensible, the Board emphasized, because it was utterly clear to all responsible officers by Dec. 6 that war was close at hand."

"When the decoded Jap messages indicating immediate hostilities 'reached G-2 not later than 9 o'clock the evening of Dec. 6,' the report states, 'it was Smith in whose hands they were placed. This intercepted information was transmitted at once to Smith by Colonel Bratton with a warning as to its extreme importance. What did Smith do? He did nothing."

"The Army Board's report states: 'Action by the War Department would have been sufficient to alert the Hawaiian Department. It was in possession of information which was the last clear chance to use the means available to meet the attack. It had the background of the full development of the Japanese preparation for war and its probable date.'"

HE'D RATHER BUILD TRACTORS HERE

Reds Paid Georgian Well To Aid Industry

By SAM CLARKE
Constitution Staff Writer

ROBINS AIR FORCE BASE, Warner Robins—A Georgian who was paid $8,000 a year plus all living expenses, with free bus, train and plane rides thrown in for "good measure," said yesterday he wouldn't take the job again in Russia if he had the chance.

He is Charles O. Snell, of Macon, a civilian employee at this military base about 18 miles south of Macon.

While he was working with General Electric in Erie, Pa., in 1936, he met a Russian who was a graduate of Northwestern University. The Russian was about to return to the Soviet Union and become a commissar of manufacturing in the Kharkov division.

After numerous discussions, Snell finally signed a contract and found himself en route to Russia. Snell said his job was to modernize manufacturing in a tractor factory near Kharkov.

He added that the Russians had never heard of such a thing as an assembly line, and had laid out their tractor plant as a triangle.

"A single crankshaft had to be tracked about nine miles from building to building and shop to shop before it was completed and ready to install," Snell declared.

The Georgian said tractor production was up 450 percent with American, British and German en-

COW RULED OUT AT UNIONTOWN BAR

UNIONTOWN, Pa.—(AP)—A startled customer told the bartender a cow was trying to get into the bar Saturday at a downtown cafe.

The bartender just laughed. Then another customer started running for the rear door. But that time the bartender was concerned. He looked up and there was a cow battering at the door.

Police took the animal in protective custody. That gave it back to its owner who said it had wandered away.

gineering touches when he left the USSR late in 1939.

"I found it hard never to say of an improvement in the factory that we did it that way in America, because comparisons aren't very good practice, when the Soviet is on the short side," Snell declared.

The Maconite reported that ominous war clouds appeared to be hovering over the USSR horizon in 1939 so he decided it was about time for him to return to the United States.

Vocalist Gantt In Atlanta Debut

Gantt, a native Atlantan, has been acclaimed by critics in the East where he has been studying and singing. Last night's concert, witnessed by several hundred persons, was the singer's first professional appearance here.

PARENTS SAY 'NO'

Air-Borne Baby Sitting Called Off

BROCKTON, Mass.—(UP)—The parents of an 18-month-old baby who was to fly to them in Honolulu in care of a baby-sitter suddenly called the whole thing off late yesterday after learning of the plan through a television news broadcast.

Navy Chief Petty Officer Henry Von Lick and his wife, who collapsed after she saw the telecast, telephoned from Honolulu about 5 p. m. EST, that their son, Eric, was not to fly to the island "in anybody's care."

Lick told the child's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Gertrude H. Le Fevier, that he was getting a 30-day leave Dec. 1 and would come to Brockton with his wife for their baby.

The news was bitterly disappointing to Everett Leland, of Stoneham, a 30-year-old ex-GI who had been selected from more than 150 applicants to escort the child to Honolulu. Leland had planned to continue from there to Australia to live with his war bride and two babies, one of whom he never has seen.

Lick, a Brockton resident attached to a submarine stationed at Honolulu, had written Mrs. Le Fevier to bring the child to him. Unable to do so, she had a travel agency advertise for a baby-sitter for the trip.

The ad was answered by more than 150 persons throughout the nation—but only two of the applicants were men. One of those was Leland, an air-line employee.

This report was one of several made. Other items on the program were mostly entertainment.

Officers of the Dental Association include: Dr. J. M. Hawley, Columbus, President; Dr. Garrett, President-elect; Dr. J. Ross Tucker, Atlanta, Vice President; Dr. J. M. Jackpot Hit Twice on Same 'Stop Music' Show

NEW YORK—(UP)—Two radio listeners "hit the jackpot" last night within five minutes of each other on the American Broadcasting Company's "Stop Music" quiz show.

The network said it was the first time the quiz program had ever paid out two jackpots on the same show.

The winners were Sidney Mahler, 43, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Steven Jaeger, of Berkeley, Cal.

Mahler, a baker, won a list of prizes that included a new automobile, a trip to Europe, a $1,000 war bond, a radio-television set and an assortment of clothes, furs, luggage and jewelry.

He guessed the "Mysterious Melody" as "Chief Hokum," after listeners had failed to identify it for six weeks. Two numbers later, Jaeger guessed the new tune, "Rustic Dance," before even the list of prizes could be announced.

To Birds: Forget Miami, Stay Here

By DORIS LOCKERMAN

Constitution Associate Editor

Atlanta's Northside birds might as well cancel their reservations for Winter at Miami. The Roney Plaza won't have anything they can't find in their own back yards.

Frank Lloyd Wright and that handsome man who builds the round Dymaxian tepees for human beings should have dropped in at the Ponce de Leon Baptist Church last Monday night. They would have been inspired or depressed, depending on how business is going with them, but they would certainly have had their eyes opened.

You never saw such construction in your life. There were bird restaurants made of sedgemoor, bird cafeterias made of cookie sheets, drive-ins of old logs, barbecue castles of salad bowls, cathedrals with Gothic roaches, pine straw pagodas, late Renaissance palaces, period huts and one Eskimo igloo.

These mansions were titled everything from the succinct "Bird Stop," a sign on a modest cigar box gilded fresh gold, to Berndt's Bird Barnery, a prize-winning little chalet.

Naturally, there were winners.

Competition is, alas, inevitable. Some of the works of art won awards, others silence. But the boys were overjoyed, regardless of whether they won or lost.

For it is an endearing quality of little boyhood that its members do not kick or scrounge for victory, after it has been assigned elsewhere. They do not stand apart when the judging is over and gossip little stabs into the heart of the winners. They are apt to turn in wide and sincere flattery and say "Gee, gosh, you lucky stiff, you won a blue ribbon!"

This may be hard on the human spirit, this competition that enters every game, every classroom, many report cards, because grown-up boys and girls do not automatically seem to possess good sportsmanship in such things as beauty contests, political jousts, bridge games, or flower arranging.

It is the rare woman who can watch someone else's Hogarth curve winning over her Chinese line sketch in a flower show without a twinge of resentment. And even John Foster Dulles had to take away from Herbert Lehman's victory in New York last week with a cryptic "You win" to President Truman.

And speaking of opponents, many a father went home after the Bird Feeding Enterprise last week and oiled up his lathe. He found out whom Junior had to beat.

MILDRED SEYDELL

Belgians Observe All Saint's Day

BRUSSELS, Belgium—Death was made beautiful on Nov. 1. All the cemeteries in Belgium were gardens in full bloom, flowers in arrangements brought by the living to honor those gone before. It was All Saints' Day, followed by Nov. 2, the Day of the Dead.

Banks closed and stores big and small. Toussaint (all saints) was certainly a day without work. It was tighter than a Sunday, because many small shops stay open on the Lord's Day. This is neither prohibited by the Catholic Church or the civil laws. The Sunday law does not forbid a person working for himself. It merely declares that no one employed shall work on Sunday except in essential jobs, or as domestics. Many Belgians live on the premises of their businesses and are ready to sell any time you ring the front door bell.

On Nov. 1 there was not a person on the streets without a bouquet. It was something like our Decoration Day. Parades, music, flowers. The cemeteries are not as attractive, as artistic, as ours. But more interesting. For on a large number of grave are the pictures under glass in frames of the persons buried. If it was not said it would be amusing. Anyway it allows you to get very friendly with the dead when your eyes look into theirs of the photos.

A lot is only big enough for one coffin, but the owner can dig as deep as he pleases and put one above another. The majority of graves are cased in with flat stones with a decorative monument at the head, and too many are covered with little wreaths that look like discarded rings from deck tennis. I would arise and "hant" anyone who might be kindly disposed to hang one on my headstone!

You purchase a cemetery lot for perpetuity—99 years—or for 15 years. All the lots sold for 99 years are on the outside lanes. The lawns inside are divided into lots on little paths. Now then after 15 years there is published in the newspapers a notice advising the kin that time is up. If the grave is on a main path of the lawn the family can pay again for 15 years ownership. But otherwise the remains and the trapping must be moved. If there is silence, no arrangements made, the grave stones are sold by the cemetery authorities and the bones of the deceased are left to continue to decay. The coffins for this type of burial are not made to resist the onslaught of time.

We don't realize in America what it means to be short of land. Georgia is more than five times bigger than Belgium, and whereas Georgia has a population slightly over 3,000,000, Belgium has almost 9,000,000. There are buildings here dating back to Charlemagne. The forest de Soignes, on the outskirts of Brussels where the population of this community walks, rides, romps among the age-old trees, beaches and oaks, was the hunting grounds of Charlemagne. Anyway, you can get an idea that with thousands of years of burials with graves left untouched, the dead would take up more space than the living!

Many Belgians prefer cremation, but it is very expensive over here, only the well-to-do can afford it.

We Americans live in a new country and a vast one; we do not have problems that an old country and a small one must solve. In evaluating the behavior of other peoples we should remember the Sioux's prayer: "Great Spirit, help me never to judge another until I have walked two leagues in his moccasins."

Society Spot: Mr. and Mrs. Rosen, from Haarlem, Holland—he is one of the important producers of bulbs—dropped in for a chat and to send greetings to the Donald Hastings, and especially to Mary Louise, who visited them when she was touring Europe. Holland is fast coming back to normal, rationing is to be done away with. Mr. Rosen, who was in Atlanta last January, is making plans to return after New Year.

And Max and I in Goodtimes are getting ready to leave around Nov. 17 for Germany. Will go first to Cologne, then to Darmstadt to visit Col. and Mrs. McDowell. They have a host of Atlanta friends, many of whom were in Atlanta last January, who was stationed there. Who wants stamps? Mildred Seydell, Hotel Siru, Brussels, Belgium.

Disaster Brings New Spirit To Atlanta Civic Theater

By BETSY HOPKINS

The puff of smoke which blotted the horizon Oct. 26 was not Chief Bottoms up in California saying "How" to his uncle, Mud In Your Eye, in Atlanta.

It was the Hudson Warehouse which went up in flames, leaving the Atlanta Civic Theater without a prop to stand on.

If you can imagine Carmel Miranda without her fruit-basket hats, Tallulah Bankhead without her couch, or "Bogie" without his "Baby" and "Baby" without their slink, you'll realize the extent of the theater group's disaster.

Their production of "See How They Run" was scheduled to open in three weeks, and all the sets, props and equipment they'd collected since their organization in 1947 was a heap of ashes big enough to fill all the spittoons in the State Capitol.

This group, who work without pay to bring entertainment to Atlanta, sent out a plea to the city at large. The city responded. Hazan's Cleaning & Tailoring Company, 1008 Peachtree St., offered the group the back room of their plant for a workshop, something the Civic Theater had always wanted. Here the actors, turned carpenters, make their own props and store them. Someone sent them the muslin they needed and someone near Hazan's is contributing lumber.

Because now they have tangible proof that the people of Atlanta are behind them, the Civic Theater has a new enthusiasm and, according to Larry Mallert, of the group, "a new spirit." Wednesday evening "See How They Run" will open on schedule at the Woman's Club, with a lot of sturdy props and rollicking laughs. It seems the group is in the mood for comedy again.

Good Neighbor Orchids

The W. B. Matthews family, of Gay, have practically supported the Meriwether County census takers for the past 60 years. The couple, who are celebrating their eighty-second birthdays this week, have been married for 62 years, have six children, 15 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren. In addition to this sizable clan, they took care of Mr. Matthews' parents and his brother until they passed away, raised an orphaned nephew and four orphaned grandchildren. Mrs. Matthews, a modern Mother Hubbard, was present at the birth of 12 of her grandchildren and nursed them through serious illnesses. For their untiring devotion to their family, this couple wins a good neighbor orchid from an admiring friend in Gay who prefers to remain anonymous.

A. Sift together 1 1/4 cups sifted cake flour, 1/2 teaspoon baking soda, 1/2 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon each of salt, cinnamon and nutmeg. Cream 1/2 cup shortening (or 6 tablespoons ground suet) until smooth and creamy. Gradually add 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar. Continue creaming. Stir in 1 egg beaten with 1 tablespoon water. Then add 1 cup grated raw carrots. 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind and 1 cup seedless raisins. Add flour mixture gradually while beating with spoon. Turn into greased, floured, covered 1 1/2 quart pudding mold. Steam for 1 hour, or until done. Serve with vanilla or hard sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Q. Last year you printed a recipe for a five-pound Wesson oil fruit cake. It was the best we have ever eaten. I've lost the recipe so please reprint it. A FRIEND.

A. Mix 1 cup salad oil, 1 1/2 cups brown sugar, 4 egg yolks and beat 2 minutes. Sift together 2 teaspoons each of allspice, cinnamon and salt, 1 teaspoon each of ground cloves and baking powder and 2 cups sifted flour. Add alternately with 1 cup fruit juice to the first mixture. Mix 1 cup chopped figs, 3 cups chopped nut meats, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup citron (sliced thin), 1 cup chopped pineapple and 1 1/2 cups candied cherries with 1 cup sifted flour. Add. Fold in stiffly beaten 4 egg whites. Bake in a slow oven (275 degrees) about 2 hours. Makes 5 to 5 1/2 pounds.

Q. When I make butterscotch rolls the topping gets hard and crusty instead of syrupy like bakers have it. Can you tell me how to do this? U. B. T.

A. Combine in saucepan 3/4 cup golden dark corn syrup, 1/4 cup butter or margarine and 1/4 cup brown sugar. Bring to a boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Pour into roll pan and place dough on top. After rolls are baked, let them stand in pan 1 to 2 minutes. Then invert pan to remove rolls.

Q.—What does "double-action" baking powder mean? B. H.

A.—Double-action baking powder has two leavening actions. First, in the mixing bowl when liquid is added to the dry ingredients. Second, when heat is applied in the process of baking.

Q.—How do you make a jelly sauce to serve over ham? P. T. B.

A.—Combine 1 cup currant or apple jelly with 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1/4 teaspoon powdered cloves, 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon and 2 tablespoons vinegar, sherry or port.

Q.—How much butter do I need to make 100 sandwiches? F. C.

A.—It requires 2 pounds softened butter to spread 200 slices of bread.

Q.—How many slices of bread can I count on from a loaf of rye and a loaf of whole wheat bread?—F. C.

A.—A 1-pound loaf of rye cuts 23 (3/4-inch) slices, without end cuts. A 1-pound loaf of whole wheat cuts 16 (1/2-inch) slices, without end crusts.

The Glass of Fashion

By MAYNITA GERRY

Any resemblance between well-dressed women this year and a billiard table may be purely accidental, but not impossible.

At present, the only things which stand between you and this achievement are a small matter of design and a smattering of sequins.

Margie Webb, the imaginative California designer, who takes full responsibility for the whole idea, promises to keep it that way.

Not from behind the eight ball, but from under it came the stuff that her latest dream creations are made of. In case you don't recognize them under their camouflage of sequins, appliques, beads, embroidery and crochets, these two-piece dresses are made—at least in part (the greater)—of felt. Of felt that is so soft it almost melts under your touch; so supple it ripples if you whistle in its presence; so smooth it skids out of your hands if you relax your grip.

The Rich's buyer, who discovered them on a recent California trip, brought back four different designs, which we can only attempt to describe. One is a deep billiard green, one is tomato red, one is soft melon green and one is black. All the skirts are bias and full, and all the waists are tiny and taut on contour waistbands, but here similarity ends.

A huge tuchsia-toned tulip, outlined in sequins and beads, which uses its head for a pocket and its stem and leaves for an applique across one entire side of the melon green skirt, will be worn with a deep green long-sleeved jersey blouse and a snug little weskit with jewel-toned flowers and embroidery outlining the U-shaped neckline.

The black felt skirt, which has a chartreuse jersey blouse, has an apron front, outlined with green white, chartreuse, black and gold braid and is appliqued in a border of flowers cut from the felt. Then there is a red felt skirt with a black jersey blouse and a green felt skirt also with black jersey top. The latter blouse has a low neck, with black wool crocheted top and short sleeves and two huge square pockets on either side of the skirt are thickly encrusted with sequin-centered flowers. On the right hip of the red skirt can be seen a fan-shaped pocket, outlined in gold braid, and right below a black masque sewn with braid.

PARIS (France, of course)—Jean Desses literally wrapped his models in ribbons to present them at his midseason collection last week. Item: Large satin ribbon bow at one side of the best and repeated at the opposite hip (Jacques Fath does the same thing to call attention to a favored locale of a gown under the chin straight at the deep V decollete, just above the felt, and very often diagonally on the hip). Item: A lovely lingerie blouse with finest tucks interspersed with 1/2-inch Alencon lace insertion, matching edging make a deep V from shoulder to waist in a modern Gibson Girl effect. The joining is marked by the narrowest of black velvet baby ribbon on either side, and is repeated at the turned-back cuff. Item: Whole blouse of ribbon, fagoted together. Pique (the Swiss, who wouldn't leave the Champs Elysees for the Nazis) championed black velvet for a blouse . . . wide bateau neckline with three-inch striped green and white ribbon laced through it, ending in a bow on the left shoulder. Pique thinks blouses should pick up colors or hats, prefers black blouses with almost all suits, street or dressy.

North's 32-Yard Run One of Season's Best

Editor's note: This is another in a series of Monday articles dealing with interesting sidelights of the week's major college football games as covered by The Constitution's sports staff.

GEORGIA TECH-ALABAMA: The finest run of this bruising battle wasn't made by the winning team and it had no bearing on the outcome.

But fans returning home on the Southern Railway's football special all agreed Bobby North's 32-yard effort in the first quarter was one of the best efforts of the season. Jimmy Jordan had returned a punt by Butch Ayinger 34 yards to the Alabama 41-yard line. The Jackets moved for seven yards on three plays, leaving it fourth and three on the Tide 34.

The play was obviously a line smash in an effort to get those three precious yards. North did more than that. He exploded through the line like Frank Sinkwich used to do. The linebackers hit him, but only slowed him up briefly.

He was being pursued by Pat O'Sullivan, and Jack Brown stood between him and the goal line at the Alabama 10-yard line. North lowered his head and snatched into Brown just as O'Sullivan made a diving tackle at him.

Brown gave ground and they all went down in a pile. When they got up, the ball was on the Tide two-yard line.

But Tech couldn't score as the run seemingly infuriated Alabama into making a great goal line stand.

—JOHN BRADBERRY.

GEORGIA-AUBURN: He might not make many All-Southeastern Conference teams, but for our money the finest running back in the League is "Breezy" Reid, of Georgia.

We've suspected that all along, but not until Saturday, when he scored the tying touchdown against Auburn did we finally become convinced.

Reid took a pitch-out from Mal Cook. He had little blocking, but he cut back and hipped off one tackler. Then he ran over another and he wiggled out of the arms of a third. He should have been stopped at the five, but he wouldn't stop. He just bulldozed his way across the goal line. After that magnificent effort, Bob Walston couldn't have missed the tying extra point. Even Fate couldn't be that unkind.

—F. M. WILLIAMS.

VANDY-TULANE: After what Tulane did to Vandy Saturday, it might be well not to mention the Commodores' lame offensive. But because End Bucky Curtis, a 200-pound Gainesville, Ga., boy, was the lone bright spot the topic deserves review.

As you may have noticed in the statistics, Vandy netted a mere 46 yards on 34 running plays and gained 105 on 18 passes.

Bucky accounted for over half of Vandy's total yardage on just two plays, one of which scored the second touchdown. The other set up the first six points.

In the first quarter, Curtis made a great grab of a long heavy by Quarterback Jamie Wade which was good for 55 yards. He was knocked out on the 12 and two snaps later Vandy scored. Then in the final period, Bucky snared a 22-yard aerial from J. Wade in the end zone.

Exclude Curtis' brilliant work and the Wades, Jamie and Bill, who threw wilder than Van Mungo at times, averaged four yards per chunk. Also, the Gainesville flankman seemingly was one of the few Commodores interested in blocking.

—JESSE OUTLAR.

KENTUCKY-FLORIDA: Fullback Ralph Genito, of Duquesne, Pa., weighs just 168 pounds and from now on he is apt to be one of the stars in the crown of Coach Bear Bryant, of the University of Kentucky. Genito is a senior, and last year he wasn't even on the regular traveling squad of the Cats. Coach Bryant says it this way:

"Genito looked good year before last. Last year he seemed to be slower and couldn't get going. We couldn't play him too much. We gave him a chance here against Florida in the last half, and he really came through. Right now, judging from his performance against Florida, he is back in his old stride. And I, for one, am certainly glad to see it happen."

The Bears from Kentucky could have gone on about a lot of his players, too, for everybody from the horse country who got in the Gator game ripped the sod apart. And in the words of the beaten coach, Bear Wolf, of Florida, there were 32 outstanding football players on that field. Kentucky played just 32 during the game.

—GEORGE TISINGER.

MISSED SOUTHARD'S PASSING, TOO

Lack of Reserves Finally Caught Up With Jackets

By JOHN BRADBERRY
Constitution Sports Editor

Lack of reserve strength and Jimmy Southard's injury finally caught up with Georgia Tech against Alabama Saturday.

The Yellow Jackets simply couldn't stand up under the terrific pounding given them by the big 'Bama linemen for a full 60 minutes and they wilted in the second half.

And their own offense was ineffective because there was no serious passing threat there. Alabama employed a seven-man line most of the second half and Tech couldn't take advantage of it.

Young Darrell Crawford played a fine game. He handled the ball well and used the proper plays. But he is simply no Southard as a passer and it hurt. Once John O'Neill was wide open in the end zone but Crawford overthrew him, missing a sure touchdown.

But despite all this, Tech played a good game. Alabama was the better club and deserved to win. But the Crimson rested last week while the Jackets were playing Tennessee and that could account for the Tide's sharpness.

There's no doubt about the Elephants being ready. They ex-pected as if a championship rested on the outcome.

They didn't make any mistakes, good show."

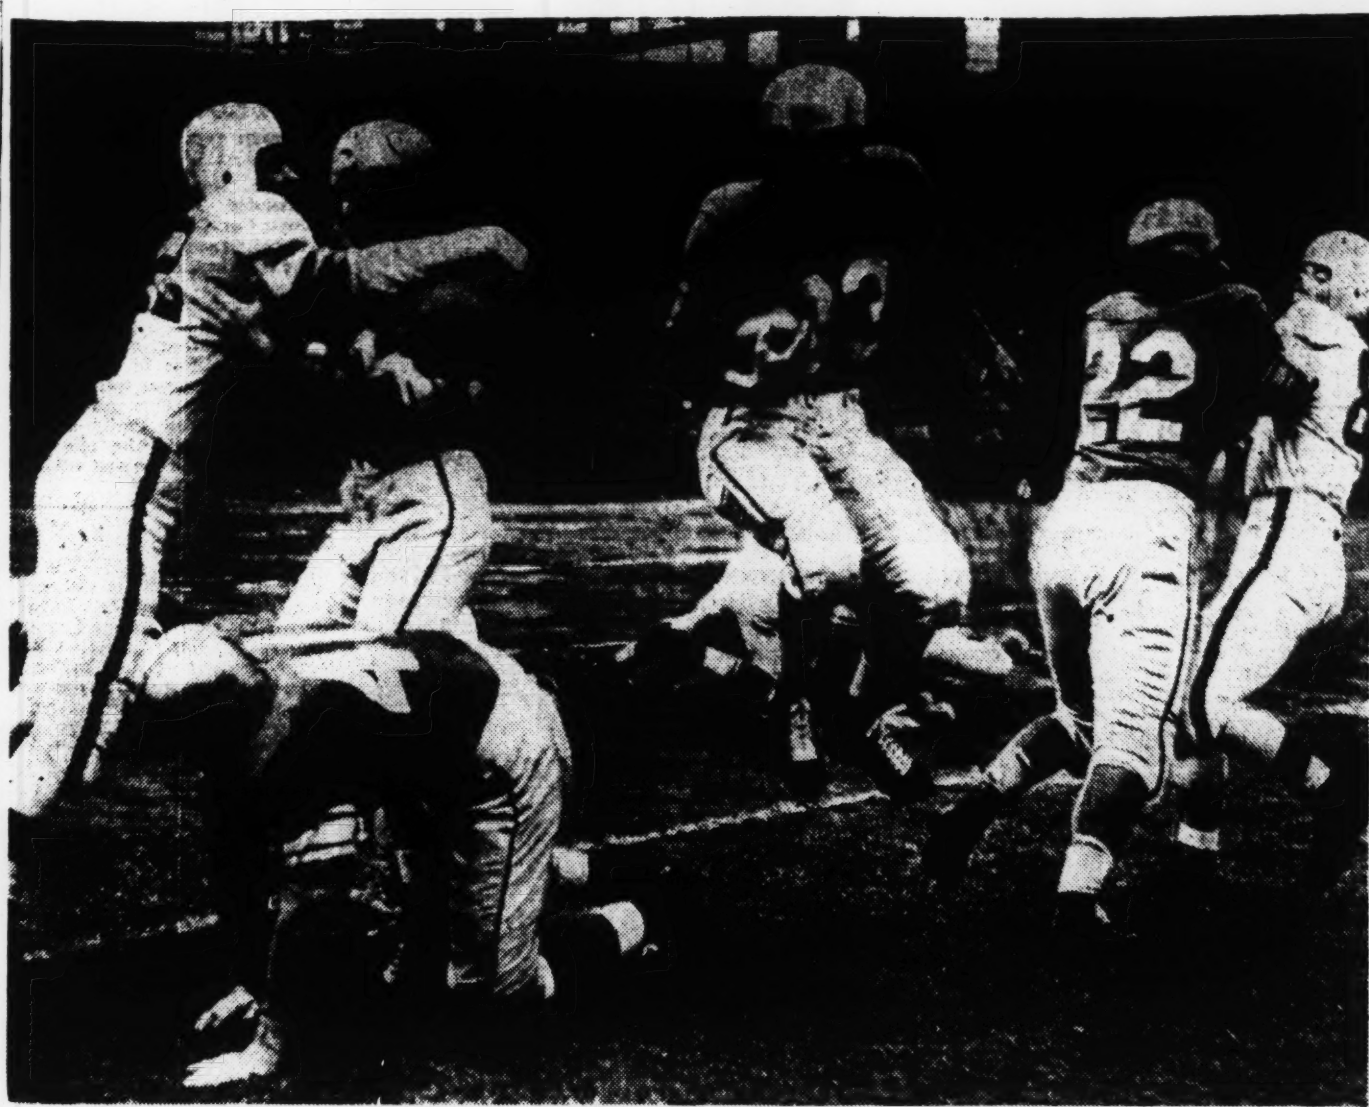

Louis To Meet Shkor Tonight

BOSTON—(AP)—Retired heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, who insists he has no intentions of a comeback, will engage in a 10-round exhibition with Johnny Shkor, rugged Boston brawler, tonight at the Boston Garden.

They put on a four-round performance here a year ago and Louis came out of it with a scraped forehead.

Louis, who will weigh in around 225 pounds, has not forgotten the Shkor mishap that forced him to cancel several other exhibition engagements.

"I'm going to try to try Shkor as early as possible," Louis explained. "It will be a fight, all right. There is no sense in stalling around and I want to put on a good show."

BIG HOLE FOR BALL CARRIER—Buffalo blockers open a big hole in the Cleveland Browns' line for Chet Mutyryn to go galloping through on a short gain in the first quarter of yesterday's game at Cleveland, which ended in a 7-7 tie. Browns being blocked out are Frank Gatski, left, and Warren Lahr, right. No. 22, of the Bills, is Arthur Statuto.

CHICAGO CARDINALS CRUSH N. Y. BULLDOGS, 65-20

Rams, Browns Held to Upset Ties

By RALPH RODEN

NEW YORK — (AP)—Upsets blocked the road for the Los Angeles Rams and the Cleveland Browns in their National Football League and All-America Conference title bids yesterday.

Los Angeles, Western Division pace-setters in the National League, was tied by the Pittsburgh Steelers, 7-7. The Browns, front-runners in the All-America Conference, were held to a 7-7 standoff by Buffalo.

The Rams gained their stalemate in the 11th hour. Fred Gehrig cracking over from the one on second down with only 24 seconds of play remaining in the last quarter. Bob Waterfield converted to tie it up.

Cleveland rolled to a touchdown in the first period with Otto Graham crossing over on a quarter-back sneak. The Bills tied it up in the second, Chet Mutyryn skirting right end with the marker.

Lou Groza's educated toe played truant in the last period. The Cleveland star attempted three field goals from the 27, 34 and 51-yard markers respectively, but all failed to make the grade. His last boot came in the final minute.

The unexpected results cut Los Angeles' edge over the Chicago Bears to one and one-half games and sliced Cleveland's lead over the New York Yankees to a half game. The Bears withstood the Detroit Lions, 27-24, and the Yanks stopped the Chicago Hornets, 14-10. Meanwhile, the Philadelphia Eagles, Eastern Division leaders in the National, flattened the Washington Redskins, 42-21, and the runner-up New York Giants, 30-10. The Giants trail the Eagles by two games. In the other National League game the Chicago Cardinals bewildered the New York Bulldogs, 65-20.

San Francisco's 49ers, after a stiff first-half duel, went to town in the final half and crushed the Los Angeles Dons, 41-24, in the remaining All-America Conference game.

The 65 points scored by the Cardinals were the most ever tallied in a regular season game in the league. The league record of 73 was scored by the Bears in their championship playoff with Washington in 1940.

Jim Hardy and Paul Christman each pitched three touchdowns passes and Card back, Pat Harder scored 23 points on two touchdowns, eight extra points and a field goal.

Tommy Thompson, Philadelphia's passing wizard, hurled four touchdowns passes to feature the Eagle rout of Washington. Cliff Patton, Eagle kicking specialist, missed converting after his team's third touchdown to snap his consecutive extra-point kicking streak at 84, a National League record.

Another passing master, Charlie Conerly, also was in top form. Conerly heaved four six pointers to spark the Giants to their triumph at Green Bay. Gene (Choo) Choo, Roberts snared three of Chuck's payoff pitches.

A passing duel between two former Notre Dame quarterbacks, Frank Tripucka of Detroit and Johnny Lujack of Chicago, highlighted the Bears' victory.

Tripucka threw three touchdown passes and completed 15 out of 33 attempts for 222 yards, Lujack clicked twice with scoring passes and completed 11 out of 23 for 172 yards. However, one of Tripucka's passes in the last period was intercepted by Ed Cody who ran it back 38 yards for a touchdown that turned out to be the winning one as Tripucka fired two touchdown passes before the frame ended.

The Yanks scored twice in the first period and then played dead against the 17 nets who got back into the game with 10 points in the second period.

Buddy Young grabbed the opening kickoff and raced 91 yards for the first Yankee touchdown. Minutes later the Yanks had another drive that started on the Chicago 35 with a crash into the double strips. Harvey Johnson converted after each touchdown to run his record to 98 straight.

The Yanks entertain Cleveland next Sunday in a game that in all probability will decide the championship.

Frankie Albert was the big gun in San Francisco's triumph over the Dons on the Coast. Albert pitched three touchdowns and initiated a scoring pass lateral.

Alabama sprawled Tech 20-7 with a neat smashing of its split-T and Notre Dame shifts and re-axes against Mississippi Southern for closing battles with Florida and Auburn.

Georgia, which had to fight back viciously even to gain a tie with underdog Auburn, plays Duquesne in preparation for its big chance to redeem a miserable all-season showing—against Georgia Tech. Tech plays South Carolina.

Vanderbilt meets Marshall before its conclusion with Tennessee and Miami entertains Florida in a hot State contest. Mississippi and Mississippi State tune up for their lustless but always bitter struggle with an off-week.

TIGERS, GREENIES WIN EASILY

LSU Last Obstacle in Tulane's Path To SEC Championship Tie With Cats

By EDWIN POPE
United Press Staff Writer

The Southeastern Conference looks toward the Tulane-Louisiana State imbroglio two weeks off to settle its 1949 championship.

The raging Bayou Bengals are the last hope to head off a perfect Tulane SEC record and keep the Greenies from tying Kentucky for the crown.

LSU continued to step toward the big battle Saturday night with a penalty-rout of Mississippi State, only a few hours after Tulane had regained its early-season form by steamrolling Vanderbilt, 41-14.

There couldn't be anything but a letdown after the terrific last Saturday of Dixie Dozen football, and the schedule is right for it.

Only one league game, a showdown between mighty Kentucky and erratic Tennessee, heads a card made up mostly of breathers before make-or-break finales.

Saturday was a day of hopped-up performances all around and most of the teams can use light assignments.

But Kentucky, which fortunately has had some rest along the way, has a heavy job in Tennessee. The Wildcats whitewashed Florida, 35-0, after the Vols rode the flaming arm of Sophomore Hank Lauricella to a 35-6 rout of Mississippi. Rebel John Dettley picked up 173 yards to raise his

REID DRAWS PRAISE

Saturday's Comeback May Fire Up Georgia

By F. M. WILLIAMS
Constitution Sports Writer

COLUMBUS—Georgia made a giant stride here Saturday towards at least a respectable football season for 1949.

Had the Bulldogs lost to Auburn—and they were on the verge of doing just that before scoring twice in six minutes for a 20-0 tie—it would have equalled the highest total of defeats a Georgia team has suffered in one season.

Since Wallace Butts became head coach in 1939.

But by coming back with those almost unbelievable touchdowns, the Georgians might have caught fire, if they did, the remaining two games, against Duquesne and Georgia Tech, should at least be interesting.

The Auburn game was far and away the best of the season for several Bulldogs. For the first time, Captain Porter Payne looked like the All-Conference lineman he was a year ago. He played almost the whole game and made one tackle after the other.

It was also the best game of the season for Billy Mixon, who, in less manner, but who for the first time managed to hold on to the ball every time he got it. Mixon, a junior from Tifton, was the game's leading ground gainer. He had 132 yards in 18 carries.

Coach Butts juggled his lineup considerably and got some good results. The biggest improvement was the insertion of Pat Field, who when Butts stayed in Columbus with his team departed for Athens after the game. He will be the speaker at the Columbus Touchdown Club today.

Crowns, Bowl Bids on Block

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK—(AP)—College footballers shoot the works this Saturday and Thanksgiving Day in final bids for Conference championships, bowl berths and the glory of perfect campaigns.

There will be scattered firing after then but almost every league race will be decided in dramatic duels Saturday and a week from Thursday.

Although there will be heated competition all over the nation, the spotlight naturally falls on the four big battles in the Big Ten and Pacific Coast Conference. In these showdown affairs league titles and the Rose Bowl nominations will be at stake.

In the Big Ten, Ohio State (4-1) tackles Michigan (4-1) and Wisconsin's surprising Badgers (3-1) tilt with the bulky Gophers of Minnesota (3-2). In the Far West, 27-7, en route to another bowl berth, the Sooner captured the Big Ten championship, again and racked up their eighteenth win in a row.

California moved closer to the Pacific Coast crown and the Rose Bowl by whipping Oregon 41-14. It was the Bears' twenty-third consecutive triumph in regular season play.

And now for another look into the coming big games.

Of the unbeaten, untied teams, Oklahoma, Virginia and California appear in for the most trouble.

Army takes the west off to prepare for the climactic clash with Navy.

Columbia faces Santa Clara, the tough West Coast independent which handed the Sooner's their last defeat—in the opener last season. Virginia idle Saturday, faces rebounding Tulane, which whacked Vanderbilt, 41-14. And California, needing only one triumph to clinch the PCC, Rose Bowl bid, and a perfect season, tackles Stanford, 63-0, victors over Idaho.

Notre Dame should move on against Iowa and College of Pacific, which routed Utah, 45-6, should breeze past Fresno State. U. of Arizona 7.

The contests Saturday carrying title significance include: Ivy were the only members of the League—Dartmouth at Princeton—country's first 10 to bowl but Boston U. and Wyoming joined Cornell in the once-beaten class. Big Ten—Ohio State at Michigan, Maryland's fine, once defeated Wisconsin at Minnesota. Southwest Conference—Rice at Texas Christian and Baylor at Southern Methodist. Pacific Coast Conference—California at Stanford and UCLA at Southern California.

Barnes, Sulzer Score 69's To Win Dogfight

Tommy Barnes and R. W. Sulzer each fired a 69 as they teamed with Charles Harrison and Ernest Harrison to win the East Lake dogfight yesterday. Charles had 71 and Ernest 72. The scored plus 12.

Other results: Plus 6—H. S. Roberts, L. B. Adams, S. E. Gill, C. G. Denormandie, minus 2—J. J. Jones, K. A. Stephenson, Hugh Wallace, C. B. Quarry, minus 3—Dr. H. W. Ridley, T. B. Willard, Dr. A. G. Lynch, W. G. Street.

Santa Clara Beats Gaels; Sooners Next

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Santa Clara's Broncos defeated their oldest football rivals, St. Mary's Gaels, 19-6, in the thirtieth "Little Big Game" yesterday.

A crowd of 37,640 saw Coach Len Casanova's hard-charging Broncos score two touchdowns in the first period and another in the second. They protected the lead all the way, but gave up a touchdown to the always battling Gaels in the last 30 seconds.

Santa Clara, defeated only by the University of California this season and a strong candidate for a bowl game, completely dominated the play. The two teams have competed against each other since 1896.

The Broncos meet undefeated University of Oklahoma at Norman next Saturday.

Santa Clara 12 7 0 0—19
St. Mary's 0 0 0 6—6

Santa Clara scoring: Touchdowns—Dung, Haynes, Pasco. Point after touchdown—Vargas (placekick).
St. Mary's scoring: Touchdown, Bell.

GOLFING ROUNDUP

Pro-Ladies' Tourney Slated at West End

By BERT PRATHER
Atlanta's women golfers will get a chance to see how well their golf teachers can play the game when the Atlanta PGA group, composed of the city's leading links instructors, act as host to the ladies in a one-day Pro-Ladies tournament tomorrow afternoon at Charlie Edwards' West End Golf Club.

One professional will team with three women players, with the winner being determined on a best ball basis. Among the professionals scheduled to play are Leo Beckmann, Peachtree Golf Club; John Livingston, Standard Town and Country Club; Willis Folland and Harold Sargent, East Lake; Bobby Stowe, Meadowbrook; Paul Lavin, North Fulton; George Berry, Capital City; Bill Hall, Adams Park, and Edwards of the host club. There is a possibility that City Open Champion Elmer Reed will join in the festivities if he is in town.

Some of the pros have their foursomes already set up. Beckmann's partners will be Mrs. Perry Robinson Kayoes and Lester, who puts Referee on Floor.

Robinson Kayoes Lester, Who Puts Referee on Floor

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Ray Robinson, world welterweight champ, knocked out Vern Lester of San Francisco in the fifth round of their scheduled 10-round, non-title bout at the Coliseum arena here yesterday. Each weighed 152 pounds.

The knockout was the second of the fight. Referee "Battling" Ferdie was kayoesd when he tried to separate Lester from Robinson after the bell rang in the third round. Lester nailed the referee with a left hook and Ferdie was floored for 30 seconds. Robinson, who displayed masterful boxing before the 4,000 fans, appeared to be annoyed at Lester for fighting after the bell ended three of the four rounds.

At the start of the fifth, Robinson leaped from his corner, smashed a vicious left hook and then connected with a right cross and Lester was counted out by Ferdie. The end came at 12 seconds.

Ed Garlington Wins Trapshoot Doubles

SPARTANBURG, S. C. (AP)—Ed Garlington, Atlanta Gun Club, yesterday won the doubles championship here by breaking 94 of 100 clay targets.

Grey Lancaster, Spartanburg, was second with 86x100. They shot in a driving rain at the Spartanburg Gun Club. Miss Frances P. King, Atlanta, won the women's handicap event with 92x100. D. P. Tribble, of Greenwood, S. C., won the men's handicap shot with 97x100 at 21 yards.

Mississippi's Dottie Tops SEC Scoring

By THE UNITED PRESS
John Dottie, Mississippi's line-battering fullback, scored a touchdown against Tennessee to hold his Southeastern Conference lead at 66 points.

But the Rebel ace faced a challenge from another quarter as Tulane's Eddie Price counted three touchdowns against Vanderbilt and moved into a second-place lead with Chuck Hunsinger of Florida at 60 points. Florida failed to score against "c. tucky."

Gordon Polofsky, Tennessee, pushed up into a third-place lead with Mississippi Billy Mustin at 42 points. Polofsky scored one touchdown against Mississippi but Mustin didn't tally.

The league's leading place-kicker was Euel Davis of Tulane, with 25 conversions. That was three better than the 22-point total of Don Blanton of Mississippi.

Leahy Says Present Squad 'Certainly Is Most Interesting'; Lauds Williams

By WILL GRIMSLEY
NEW YORK (AP)—How good is Notre Dame? Frank Leahy, the debonair precisionist who guides the Irish football team, pondered the question yesterday and came up with this reply:

"This may be the greatest team when they got that touchdown in the first three minutes," he declared. "A friend told me later in the dressing room he saw 22 Notre Dame blocks on that play. Each player got his man and then did it over again."

Leahy said the play that gave a "standout," he said, "you can't have the biggest thrill of the game single any guy out and call him a sparkplug."

However, Leahy indicated the score might have been different if he hadn't got what he termed a "bad" decision by officials.

FIFTH STRINGERS FINISHED

Bear Bryant's Big Stars Were Called Off Early

By GEORGE TISINGER
TAMPA, Fla.—The battle which was advertised down here as the test of "The Arm" against "The Leg" strictly failed to materialize as Coach Bear Bryant, of Kentucky, kept his big guns on the bench all during the second half of last Saturday's game, which Kentucky won going away by a score of 35-0.

The brilliant sophomore quarterback, Babe Parilli, known as "the Arm," stayed in just long enough to give his side the right shot in the arm they needed from the air. After that, they just sort of took it along the ground with a 168-pound halfback named Ralph Genito doing great work.

"The Leg," namely Chuck Hunsinger, Florida's great running halfback, had absolutely no protection, and when he did make a run or two it was all by himself as the huge Kentucky line scrambled the lighter but willing Gators before them.

In fact, after the game there were staunch Florida supporters who kept repeating to themselves that they couldn't believe it either. But the Gators are simply not a second half club.

They kept remembering the Florida-Tech game in which the players of Bear Wolf waited in the second half. They kept telling all who would listen that they had just seen the same thing happen again when the men from Gainesville couldn't play football in the same stadium with Kentucky after they came back from the half-time rest.

Nobody down here could blame the Bear from Kentucky. He shot his big guns just long enough to keep them warm and then let his reserves finish the ball game. Honestly, he had fast-stringers in the line in the fourth quarter. Some of those guys weren't certain they were going to make the trip Thursday.

One of the biggest discussion points in Florida now is what to do with Florida's football team in their annual game here in a stadium seating only 21,000 people. The next main point is why they think Miami University is going to stay out of the Southeastern Conference. The reasons are that the Hurricane can sit down in Miami and entertain all the other teams in the country. Because they all want to come to Florida. And that argument doesn't sound bad.

Once in a while somebody would say something about the Wildcat Gator game. But he was soon hushed up, because Florida wants to forget that one. They ought to.

St. Vincent's Unbeaten

LATROBE, Pa.—(AP)—St. Vincent's Bears continued among the nation's undefeated and untied grid teams yesterday as they scored in every period to shut out Mt. St. Mary's, 30-0, before a crowd of 5,000.

Accompanying Citation were Ponder, winner of the 1949 Kentucky Derby, fervent and 16 others of the Calumet string which had been shipped here for the current Pimlico meeting. The 21-day session winds up Thursday.

Nineteen other Calumet racers, headed by Coalton, arrived in Florida yesterday. They will race at Hialeah.

HAIR GETTING THIN? then GROOM IT WITH KREML

TO AVOID "SCALP SCUM" AND MAKE HAIR LOOK NEAT

There's nothing better than Kreml! It doesn't look like the least bit greasy, sticky or gooey. A scum-free, dirt-catching film shows through on the scalp. Kreml always keeps hair and scalp looking and feeling so clean, AND SO VERY IMPORTANT—Kreml removes dandruff flakes (more noticeable with dry scalp) giving it a delightful tingle. Change to Kreml today.

Tulane's Hopes for Bow Revived

By JESSE OUTLAR
Tulane's supporters who haven't spoken. He also said that he does not know what has happened to their local crowd in recent weeks. Certainly Saturday's exhibition was not one of the Greenies' rocked Vandy, 41-13, which a team with Vandy's individual talent could be proud to have staged at Dudley Field.

They were even talking about playing football after Eddie Bowl games again and the fact Price scooted 69 yards for the fourth Virginia and LSU remain as fourth Tulane touchdown on the paramount obstacles didn't seem to matter. The Southeastern Conference championship was an earnest and no less than six other topic of much discussion when the Greenies were carted off in the now that the Greenies have slumped down five straight league losses.

But then there were the more conservative people who wondered if Tulane has snapped out of its long slumber and is really put of good, or if Vandy is just that bad.

Coach Bill Edwards said that his boys didn't block and tackle and truer words seldom have been almost got away with it after Tulane scored its second touchdown, injecting a bit of comedy into the gloomy fray. But they sent him out again.

Gen. Forrest's Burial Tomorrow at Arlington

Final tribute will be paid tomorrow to the distinguished military career of Brig. Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest with his burial at 11 a. m. in Washington's Arlington Cemetery.

GEN. NATHAN B. FORREST

Reburied Tomorrow

Traditional rites of a simple military ceremony. The former Atlantian was the youngest and first U. S. General to die in combat in World War II. He perished with 10 others of his 12-man crew after their plane was crippled during a bombing attack June 13, 1943, over Kiel, Germany.

His body was returned to the United States recently at the request of his nearest kin. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Guy A. Myers, Mrs. Nancy Forrest, of Atlanta; Mrs. Walter W. Law, of Memphis, Tenn.; three nephews and one niece. Mrs. Myers left Atlanta Saturday for Washington to attend the last rites for her brother. Gen. Forrest was commanding an air attack of 26 B-17s from the lead plane on the ill-fated bombing mission. His plane was fatally damaged by anti-aircraft fire and fighter opposition but he went on in to dump his bomb cargo over the target. Nine of the crew parachuted into the Baltic Sea, with only Lt. Wilfred W. Brown, of Cleveland, Ohio, surviving.

The War Department subsequently learned from captured German records that Gen. Forrest's body was washed ashore Sept. 28, 1943, near Wick, Germany, and buried there. Among those present for the reburial in one of the nation's most revered military cemeteries will be Lt. Brown. It was his letter from Germany, written later that established the heroism of the General's last minutes alive. "When I left the ship," Lt. Brown wrote, "I believe all officer personnel had safely preceded me with the exception of the senior officer, Gen. Forrest. He remained with the ship until he had successfully assisted all the men in escaping through the forward hatch, which had jammed."

tomorrow to the distinguished military career of Brig. Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest with his burial at 11 a. m. in Washington's Arlington Cemetery.

The body of the great-grandson and namesake of the famed Confederate cavalry general will reach its final resting place during the prerogative of rank in being the last to leave the plane, with the exception of the three crew men already wounded or fatally injured from shrapnel or bullets.

He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross on Sept. 14, 1943, which cited him for complete disregard for personal danger in the face of the strongest opposition encountered on a bombing mission at the time.

Gen. Forrest was born in Memphis, Tenn., April 3, 1858. His parents moved to Mississippi and then to Atlanta. They were living in Atlanta when he entered West Point. He was commissioned a second lieutenant on June 8, 1878.

Although officially a cavalry officer, he went to the Army Flying School at Brooks Field, Texas, in June, 1923, and began the career which carried him to a General's star on Nov. 2, 1942, at the age of 37. Simultaneously, he was made Chief of Staff of the Second Bomber Command, at Fort George Wright, Washington.

The air raid over Kiel was one of the first he made after reaching an overseas base. His assignment to the General's rank came four years earlier than a similar promotion for his illustrious predecessor, the Confederate General, Nathan Bedford Forrest, who received his first star at 41.

An enlisted private who rose to lieutenant general in the Confederate Army, Nathan Bedford Forrest was the hero of innumerable anecdotes, some doubtless legendary. He is recalled most often in quoted references for his formula of successful campaigns: "Get the fastest to the mostest." Such peculiarities of speech credited to Forrest are not considered accurate measurements of his true stature. He was rated high as a mathematician and for a military genius that caused Gen. Robert E. Lee to regard him as the best soldier. Lee had never personally met Gen. Forrest.

His name was handed down from father to son until the younger Gen. Forrest. He was the last in line of descent to bear the family name, which was gradually lost to the fame surrounding the military exploits of his ancestor.

Ga. Distributors, Inc., Showing 1950 Capehart Radio, Television Sets

Many New Features Incorporated

Capehart's 1950 radio and television sets have been acclaimed by local dealers as the outstanding line, Harry H. Hurt, President of Georgia Distributors, Inc., announced Monday.

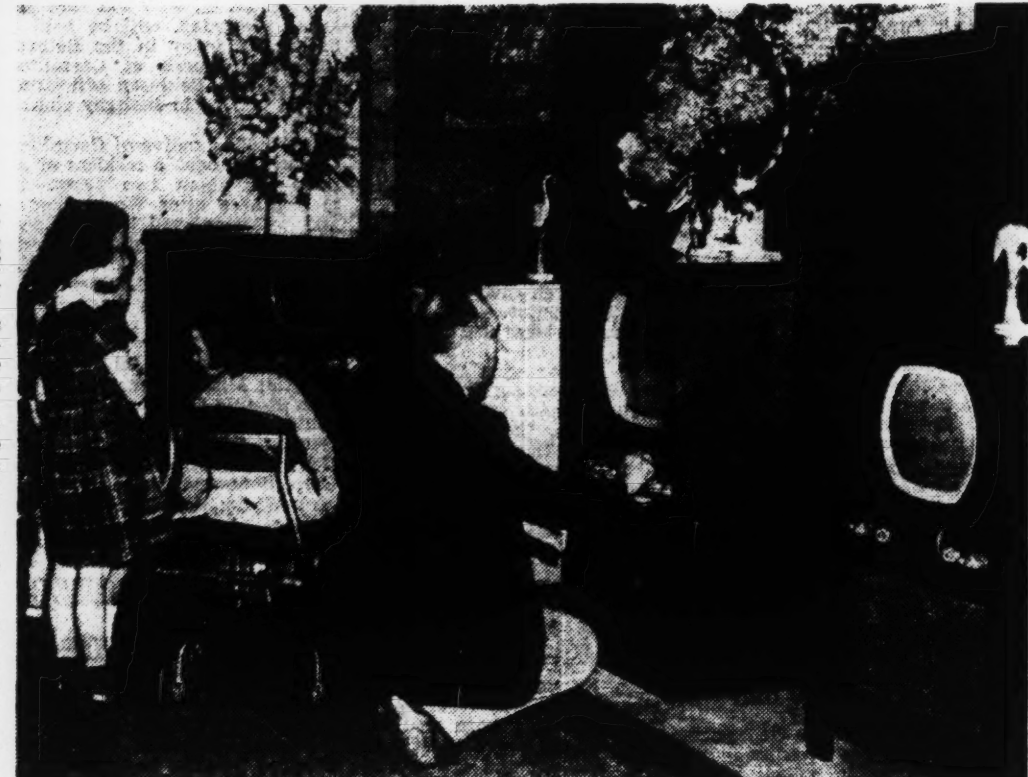

Demand for the new line has been so great throughout the country that these popular sets are now on a temporary allocation basis.

Dealers from the Atlanta area and throughout the State have been viewing the 1950 sets since they were first put on display at Georgia Distributors, Inc., recently, Mr. Hurt said.

The famous Capehart is distributed exclusively in the State by Georgia Distributors, Inc., 754 Ponce de Leon Pl., N. E.

Capehart will present, during November, a new table model TV set with a 16" picture tube in addition to its line of TV receivers and radio-combinations.

Capehart has been recognized for more than 20 years as one of the world's finest musical reproduction instruments and the 1950 line will bring it the same acknowledged leadership in television.

A VIEW of some of the sets shown when Georgia Distributors, Inc., presented the 1950 Capehart radio and television line.

"Outstanding feature of the new television sets is Capehart's exclusive 'Polatron' picture tube, which not only sharply reduces glare, but minimizes the halation effect inherent in all other types of picture tubes," Mr. Hurt said.

Capehart recently became an associated company of International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation, and thus the engineering resources and facilities of IT&T's world-renowned laboratories, have been available in development of the 1950 line.

By broadening its price range, Capehart has now made it possible for more discriminating people than ever before to own a Capehart. For example, we offer this year a Capehart television set with a 12 1/2-inch "Polatron" tube for only $279.50.

The model Mr. Hurt mentioned at that price is the Minuet, a table model of distinctive charm, in mahogany. A similar model is the Rhapsody, finished in bisque, only slightly higher. Both have the traditional Capehart excellence of sound reproduction.

Prices range up to $795, for models containing the three home entertainment services of television, AM-FM radio, and three-speed record players. Another outstanding feature of the larger Capeharts is the record player, that plays all types and sizes of records automatically.

The larger sets also contain a 16-inch picture tube, and are more distinctive than ever on account of their superlative cabinetry in authentic styling, both traditional and modern.

In addition to the television line, Capehart again offers radio-phonographs of the same quality that have held for Capehart its position of pre-eminence in that field for more than two decades.

These combinations, like the television lines, are priced in a range that makes Capehart ownership possible to persons in every income bracket.

Textron Electric Blanket Sold by H. Mendel & Co.

The Electric Blanket is now within the reach of the average consumer's pocketbook. Keeping pace with developments in the field, the Nashua Mills, Division of Textron, Inc., is introducing the Textron Electric Blanket with a thermostatically controlled unit, to retail at $29.95 plus $1.30 Federal Excise tax. Nashua Mills holds one of the basic patents in the electric blanket field, being one of the pioneers of the special weave necessary to allow easy installation of the electrical unit.

There are about 37 million wired homes in the United States with an average of 2 1/2 beds per home, creating a market for about 90 million electric blankets. To date about 1 1/2 million electric blankets are in circulation, a great portion of which was sold last year.

The product itself has the one quality necessary to make it acceptable to the general public. It admittedly contributes to the American Standard of Living. With one covering, the user is able to sleep under the same temperature for the entire night because the thermostatic control adjusts the heat of the blanket to changing temperatures. The sleeper thereby is relieved from the discomforts of sudden changes of temperature and the tired feeling that results from sleeping under the excessive weight of heavy bed coverings.

The blanket, with all parts, weighs a little under five pounds. It is a luxuriously napped blanket made of 50% wool, 25% rayon and 25% cotton with a rich rayon satin binding. They come in the new decorator colors, Sunlight Yellow, Muted Rose, Slumber Blue, April Green, Hunter Green and Coney Red. They are fully guaranteed for one year by Textron, Inc.

In Atlanta the Textron Electric Blankets are sold exclusively to retail dealers by H. Mendel & Company, authorized distributor of Textron Products. This company carries stocks of these blankets right here in Atlanta and is in position to make immediate deliveries.

The Textron Electric Blanket makes a magnificent Christmas gift and due to the growing popularity of the electric blankets it is expected that thousands of these blankets will be purchased by the consumers as a gift item for the coming Holiday season.

Retailers can secure advertising mats and dealers' helps by communicating with H. Mendel & Company, 185-191 Pryor St., S. W.

AND YOU NEVER DREAMED SLEEP COULD BE SO SWEET—The new Textron electric blanket gives you the rest of your life. Now introduced with a thermostatically controlled unit. They are sold exclusively to retail dealers by H. Mendel & Company, Atlanta, authorized distributors of Textron products.

Superior Aluminum Awnings Will Withstand Any Type Weather

Individually Designed for Your Building

By JIMMY CHAMBERS

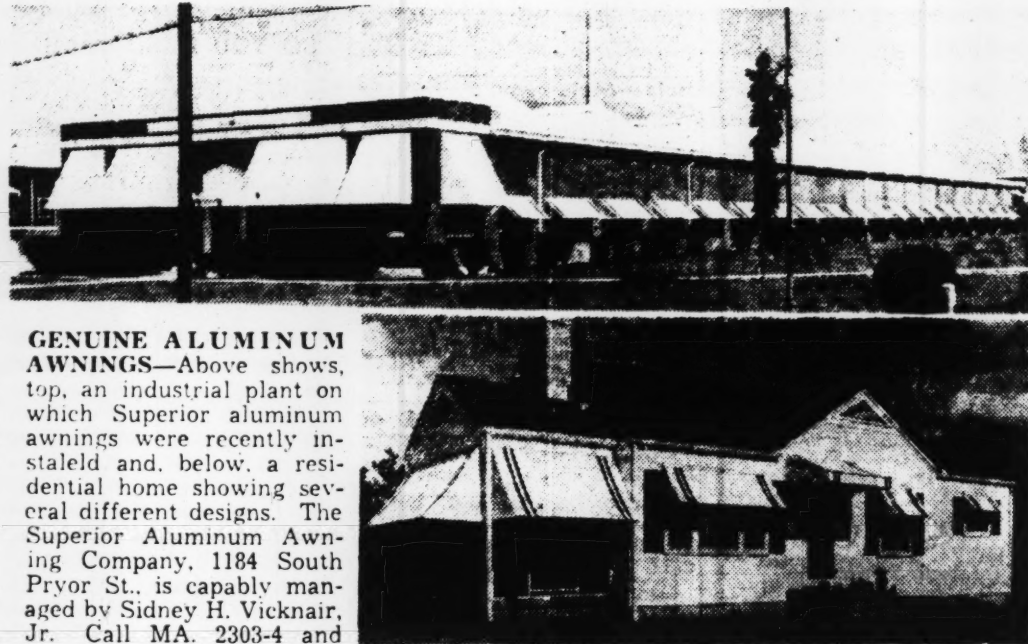

Homeowners throughout the South are rapidly learning the advantages of having Superior Aluminum Awnings installed on their home, whether it be winter or summer.

During the winter months, these awnings, manufactured and installed by the Superior Aluminum Awning Co., help keep the wintry blasts of cold wind away from the window or door on which they are installed, as well as keeping snow and sleet from piling up and forming around them.

Manufactured in their recently enlarged plant at 1184 So. Pryor St., Superior awnings are made to withstand any type weather. The paint on the awnings is baked on in their own infrared bake oven, which prevents the paint from flaking and peeling, thereby assuring you of everlasting beauty from Superior awnings.

The individuality of the construction and the originality in their curved design is one reason for the ever-increasing popularity of Superior awnings. Their awnings come in many different colors and designs and they are custom-made for any type architecture. The accompanying picture shows how they add to the beauty of the home on which they are installed.

"We have the only awning on the market that can be made to beautify and yet protect any style home or building," says S. H. Vicknair, Jr., manager of the company. "Close inspection of our awnings shows that our construction is one hundred percent aluminum," Mr. Vicknair adds.

Superior awnings are made with a series of aluminum strips, which allow a damaged section of the awning to be repaired with a minimum of expense, whereas some awnings appear to be of the same construction, but are not.

Another feature that makes Superior awnings popular with homeowners, some industrial building owners, too, is the fact that they can be financed through the FHA, allowing the purchaser, as long as 36 months to pay, with no down payment.

A list of Superior Awning dealers with their addresses and phone numbers is herewith submitted in order that you may contact the dealer for your vicinity and allow him to give you a free estimate on the awnings for your home or business headquarters. U. S. Cotton Council Plans New War on Boll Weevil

Special to The Constitution
MEMPHIS, Tenn.—A more effective cotton insect control program, through close integration of the efforts of Federal and State agencies, insecticide manufacturers, the cotton industry and farm organizations, is the goal of the third annual Cotton Insect Control Conference Dec. 19-20 in Birmingham. The meeting will be sponsored by the National Cotton Council.

Claude L. Welch, director of support for the research and education of the Cotton Council's production and marketing division, in announcing the goal, added that creation of a greater awareness of the huge economic loss due to cotton pests is one of the primary conference objectives. Another purpose is to bring about more of cotton insecticides, and (5) community action in insect control.

High point of the meeting will be the summary of a report of an earlier session of Federal and State entomologists. The report, a compilation of the findings of these researchers during the past year, will be released by Prof. R. W. Harned, who is in charge of the cotton insect division, Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine. It will serve as a basis for 1950 cotton insect control recommendations.

Following Prof. Harned's address, Extension entomologists from the States represented at the meeting, including Georgia, are scheduled to release State insect control recommendations based on the general report.

Cooperating with the National Cotton Council in presenting the conference are farm organizations, land grant colleges, vocational agriculture, the USDA, and the National Agricultural Chemicals Association.

The program of the 1949 insect control meeting includes addresses summarizing results of: (1) Insect control work during the year, (2) research on insecticides, both dusts and sprays, (3) Institute will be the hosts. Headquarters of insecticide application quarters will be in the Tutwiler equipment, (4) studies of toxicity

YOUR STARS TODAY

General Tendencies—The moon is in the sign Virgo today, stimulating people born near Sept. 1, and also agreeing pretty well with other indications for the day. The most favorable subjects will be occupational details, study or correspondence and some travel may take place. This should be confined to daylight hours, as danger or accident follows night driving or walking in here. It would be wise to plan home amusements for this evening and avoid outside difficulties.

If It's Your Birthday—I can see that your current year is to be one of strict application and not much nonsense. You have several signs of intense effort and scarcely anything to show diversion. If you take time out for amusements, they will certainly cost more than you might have expected in advance. Be cautious about winter months as these seem to be high in responsibility or cost without your usual resources or income; you may not be up to par in health. If romance is on your mind, it will take a serious and quiet turn, not be an affair of the moment.

THOMAS CAN SAVE YOUR HAIR

Baldness warns you when it is approaching. Your scalp is laden with dandruff, it itches, and your hair becomes thin and scraggly at the temples, crown and frontal point. Disregard these warnings and you'll soon be bald. Heed them and consult a Thomas expert if you want to avoid baldness.

More than a half-million other men who noticed their hair becoming thin consulted Thomas during the past 27 years. They saved their hair—ended dandruff, stopped abnormal hairfall and actually re-grew hair on the thin and bald spots. Only Thomas can give you the skill and precision in scalp treatment based on 27 years of successful experience!

You, too, can have a good head of hair. Call today for a free scalp examination. The Thomas expert will tell you frankly what can be done in your particular case. If benefits are improbable—you will be told. No charge is ever made for consultation or complete scalp examination in a Thomas office.

Canasta To Win

By A. BERT H. MOREHEAD
Noted Authority on Games

In bridge you can signal to partner in the bidding and, later, by your choice of high or low cards to play and discard. In some rummy games, you can signal by choice of discards—for example, an ace means one thing, a face card another. But in canasta there is no such system of conventional plays—not yet, at any rate.

There are, however, many inferences that can be drawn from your partner's play.

Suppose you hold:

three eights. He discards a nine, and has only one card left.

You can safely bet that his remaining card is a player, and more than likely it is a wild card. He discards—for example, an ace could not complete a canasta, but as soon as you can help to make one he will go out and set the opponents back a few hundred points.

So when your turn comes, you follow through by adding your eight and both your eights to his three eights, bringing it to within one card of a completed canasta. (Of course, if you should draw an ace or four on your next turn, you would have a choice of plays.)

When the hand was played, that is what happened; the opponents were not fortunate enough to make their 120 meld in the meantime, and the partner's one card was a wild card, with which he went out.

Question: We understand that in expert games after a canasta has been completed it is permissible to add as many wild cards as desired. What about the rule which prohibits using more than three wild cards in any meld?

Answer: Your understanding is correct: The rules in general use make an exception to the rule of "three wild cards" when a canasta has already been completed.

Mirror of Your Mind

Consulting Psychologist

Should you argue with someone who "thinks he's perfect"?

Answer: You had better avoid mended. It may work occasionally people like this if you can, since with four people who are very besides being bores, they may be sure of themselves and each other, dangerous to deal with. For their but I've seen few cases in which calm assurance that they're all one of the quartet did not end by ways right is the unconscious becoming jealous, with a broken product of an inner terror at the friendship or a broken marriage as the outcome.

Can anxiety give you a headache?

Answer: Not directly as a rule, except with children, says Dr. Lloyd J. Thompson, of the Bowman-Gray School of Medicine, Winston-Salem, N. C. Headaches that have no organic basis generally have as their immediate cause some other physical effect of anxiety: Muscular tension, congested circulation or a digestive disturbance. But though it works indirectly, anxiety (the word used by psychiatrists for what the layman calls "nervous tension") is the primary cause of most headaches and secure, well-adjusted people seldom have them.

Should married couples go on "double dates"?

Answer: The practice is harmless enough if the two men stick together, or if each man's wife remains his "partner for the evening." But the kind of foursome in which each man "pairs off" with the other's wife, though not uncommon in unconventional circles, is too risky to be recommended.

FFA Pine Project Planned in State

SWAINSBORO—Georgia Junior Chambers of Commerce are buying approximately 1,500,000 pine seedlings to give to Future Farmers of America for planting, Lee Price, State Jaycee president, revealed here yesterday.

PEACH AND PECANS—The pecan season in Georgia is in full swing and pretty Liz Nobles, of Cordele, is shown above packing some of the luscious nuts at the Cordele Mart.

Bumper Tift Crops Bring Farmers Cash

TIFFON—This harvest time Tift County will have one of the largest and best corn crops in history. The acreage planted in corn this year was more than last year and the yield is expected to surpass the 1948 total.

Tift County farmers are about 75 percent through with the picking of their huge peanut crop. County Agent C. B. Culpepper, reported yesterday. This year Tift farmers planted about 22,000 acres in the valuable groundpea.

The 22,000 acres were the allotments granted to Tift farmers for this season. Although the acreage is large, the yield of peanuts will not be as good as last year, due to the excessive warm and dry weather.

This year Tift farmers had about 9,000 acres planted to what formerly was called King Cotton. Due to the boll weevil and weather conditions, the cotton crop was damaged and the yield not as good as other seasons.

The sugar cane crop in Tift, which in years past was a large crop, is very small this year, mostly planted for the family use of the farmers. Farmers here have about stopped raising cane for commercial purposes.

Sweet potatoes also formerly were a large crop in Tift. The sweet potatoes were almost eliminated in Tift due to the weevil infestation in recent years.

Cook County Holds First Swine Auction

ADEL—The Flanders Brothers, Adel, paid $180 for the best bred Duroc gilt at the first Purebred Swine Auction sale to be held in Cook County.

The 40 purebred hogs consigned grossed $2,609.50. Bred gilts averaged $100.50; young gilts and boars averaged $37 and $39, respectively.

A number of the improved Durocs were purchased by W. T. Boone, Live Oak, Fla.; R. D. Murphy, Jennings, Fla.; O. H. Rhodes, Hinton, Williams, Sycamore; Karl Hoyer, Valdosta; O. L. Tyson, Nashville.

Dr. L. R. Hutchinson and E. J. Lovett purchased several herd gilts. The principal consignors of the sale were R. E. Dixon, Sparks; Flanders Brothers, D. F. Bruton, Miles Rountree, J. E. Musselwhite, Bill Faircloth, Adel, and L. E. Crawford, Lenox.

The Swine Show, in which the best gilts and boars were selected, was held on the Cook County Fair Grounds.

Judges were W. C. McCormick, livestock specialist, Coastal Plain Experiment Station, Tifton; L. O. Parker, agricultural representative, Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, Macon; Jones Purcell, agricultural representative, Central of Georgia Railroad, Athens.

Aide to Ranger

ALBANY—J. K. Jones, of Albany, has been chosen assistant ranger to Forestry Ranger Turner Barber, Jr., of the Dougherty County State Forest Protection Unit.

Purchasing tree seedlings for members of rural youth organizations to plant is the national conservation project for Jaycees for this year. Price says local Jaycees clubs in 36 Georgia cities are co-operating to buy a minimum of 5,000 seedlings for each of the 286 FFA chapters in the State.

Jim Dixon, of Dublin, explains that the purpose of this undertaking is two-fold—"to help and encourage Future Farmers to reforest wasted acres, and to educate them as to the needs for reforestation and proper forest management." He is chairman of the Jaycees' state agricultural committee.

"We expect upwards of 2,200 acres will be planted to pines by the end of the year, with 2,000 boys participating in this plan," Mr. Dixon estimated.

The trees are being given to the boys on the condition that they will plant them properly under the supervision of their teachers of vocational agriculture.

T. G. Walters, state supervisor of agricultural education, says this plan should prove to be of very great educational value. By setting seedlings on their farms, Future Farmers will be enabled to carry out the "learn by doing" philosophy of vocational education.

Studies by the Georgia Forestry Commission indicate that there are 2 1/2 million acres of land in this State which should be planted to pine seedlings. Actually, there are nearly five million acres either lying idle or poorly stocked, but fire protection measures are expected to lead to the natural reforestation of nearly half of this. Acres now in woodland are producing less than half of their capacity.

Swain County Jaycees were the first in the State to complete arrangements for buying seedlings for FFA chapters in their area. According to H. Glenn Segars, adviser of the Swain County FFA chapter, Jaycees there have ordered 30,000 pines for the Adrian Emanuel County Institute, Metter; Pulaski, Summerton, and Swain County FFA groups. Meredith Price is the Swain County Jaycee president.

Waycross Honors Pine Patriot

WAYCROSS—A man who loves pine trees and through his research brought a new perspective to the naval stores industry, was honored by his colleagues at a meeting here of the Gum Processors' Association.

Dr. George Pinckney Shingler, a pine patriot, has retired as head of the Naval Stores Station of the Bureau of Agriculture and Industrial Chemistry, U. S. Department of Agriculture at headquarters in Olustee, Fla.

The occasion which recognized the distinguished services of one of the greatest naval stores scientists of all times brought to Waycross a group of naval stores officials from Southern States, representing the top figures in the industry.

NEW FFA PROGRAM—Georgia Junior Chamber of Commerce and FFA officials visited the Davisboro nursery of the Georgia Forestry Commission to complete arrangements for picking up pine seedlings which Jaycees over the State are buying for the Future Farmers to plant. Approximately 1,500,000 seedlings or 2,200 acres will be planted under this plan. John P. Herndon (kneeling, right), nursery superintendent, explains how the seedlings have been pulled from the beds. Others in the picture are John Clifton (kneeling, left), of the Swain County FFA chapter; standing, left to right, Lee Price, Jr., of Swain County, State Jaycee president; T. G. Walters, FFA executive secretary and Jim Dixon.

FIRST OF ITS KIND IN GEORGIA

New Mine Makes History at Hartwell

HARTWELL—This thriving Northeast Georgia town may become the mecca for persons from afar, and all because of mica.

A mica mining project, the first of its kind in Georgia, has begun operations near Hartwell.

The process took nearly two years to perfect at a cost of approximately $300,000 to the Funkhouser Company of Maryland which operates the mine.

The mine is not processing the ordinary sheet mica, or lumps, but billions of tiny, shiny particles which fill the earth. The "poor man's gold" is really living up to its name because, with the increased employment, thousands of extra dollars will pour into workers' pockets. The new plant already is focusing nationwide attention to Hart County. Although there are a number of mica mines operating in the State, the special processing system used by the new plant here is reported to be one of the first in the nation.

It is said that the supply of mica at this one location in Hart County is sufficient to last 300 years. The plant is using the placer system of mining with the aid of "spirals." An engineer who visited the mine recently declared, "I never thought I'd see a spiral in Georgia."

The present Funkhouser plant is called a "pilot" plant, F. C. McConnell, General Manager, said. He added that as soon as "all the kinks" are worked out a huge new plant will be supplemented at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars, and produce mica in terms of many carloads per day. Officials explained the byproducts of mica are white sand and quartz which are used by plasterers, glassmakers, and in the manufacture of copper. After the mud and dirt are washed from the mica it proceeds to what miners call a "rod mill" which is a huge steel cylinder containing 14,000 pounds of round steel rods. This process separates the sand and mica, and then it moves to a "classifier." The one next goes to the "spirals." After this, it is dried and sacked for shipment all over the United States.

Some of the uses of mica processed here include the manufacture of asphalt and fireproof shingles.

By SAM CLARKE

Constitution State News Service

It is also sought by paint manufacturers for which the mica must be ground as fine as talcum powder to be used as a paint base. Leading geologists and engineers from throughout the nation came to Hartwell to witness and take notes on the opening of this new mining project.

The mine is located just south of Hartwell on the Bio Highway 4000 acre purchased by the Funkhouser Company.

SMALL DAIRYMEN BENEFITED

DeKalb Breeders Welcome First Test-Tube Calves

DeKalb's dairy farmers, quick to reap the benefits of scientific farming, are beginning to receive their first "test-tube" calves.

During the past few weeks the first products of the DeKalb Breeders' Association were born in the county. Descendants of some of the best sires in America, these calves promise to step up already high butterfat production to even greater marks.

The results of artificial insemination in DeKalb County won't be so pronounced as in some other sections, however, since many of the larger herds in the county are already high producers.

"It'll help the little man most," says Ford Whitlow, technician with the Association. That opinion is backed up by Frank W. Fitch, Sr.

Several of the dairymen are already getting rid of their bulls, Whitlow reports. By doing so they are eliminating the purchase price of a bull, and saving enough money on feed to care for another cow. It also eliminates a danger on many farms by getting rid of a dangerous animal.

There are several other advantages to artificial breeding, according to the Extension Service, but its greatest advantages come in the convenience and the increased quality of animals which, in turn, give better production.

The cost of service from the associations—there are 11 in Georgia serving over 20 counties—compares favorably with natural service, and eliminates a transportation bill for farmers who do not own their own bull.

More information on the DeKalb Breeders' Association, which will furnish service to any farmer within a 20-mile radius, may be obtained through the DeKalb County Agent's office.

CHANNING COPE'S ALMANAC

Internal Parasites Take Livestock Toll

MONDAY, NOV. 14, 1949

Suggestion of the day: "We try to grow a legume on every acre of our farm every year."

—Ennmett Cabiness, Oglethorpe County farmer.

DIET OF WORMS

There are many diseases more quickly fatal than the eventual killing of animals by internal parasites, but there are no diseases more costly to the farmer. The various worms take a daily toll of the feed intake and (usually) of the blood supply of the animal. They take the feed and the life-blood and they check the animal's growth. There is nothing good about an internal parasite unless it be said of him, as of the devil, "He's an industrious person."

There are many internal parasites getting their living from cows, hogs, horses, mules, sheep and chickens. Among them are round worms, hook worms, nodular worms, stomach worms, bowel worms, and strongyles in horses.

Phenothiazine gets most of them (see directions on the individual package), but some of the worms require additional treatment with nicotine sulphate and copper sulphate. There is a remedy called Trol which contains all of these. Many reputable firms manufacture worm remedies and they can usually be had from veterinary supply houses, drug stores, or feed stores. Your County Agent or vocational teacher can advise you further.

The big thing to remember is that so long as your animals are infested with worms they will not make the best use of their intake of feed, they will not make the most gains nor let down the most milk of which they are capable. Moreover, they are more susceptible to other diseases because of their weakened condition. Young animals, in particular, are crippled by the internal parasites.

Remember, it is the farmer, and the farmer only, who loses when the animals die from disease. Remember, too, animals can be freed of these parasites with small expense and a small amount of intelligent labor. Now is the time to get the worms out of your animals.

The Yellow River Farm Program is on the air Monday through Friday at 6 a. m. over WCON, WMAZ and WGGA join us at 6:15 a. m. An encore at 12:45 over WCON with WFOM in Marietta joining us.

CORN PROJECT

Dodge County Vet Sets Record

Constitution State News Service

EASTMAN—A veteran by the name of Farmer really lived up to his name and set a new record in Dodge County.

County Agent Carter E. Martin said yesterday that J. C. Farmer, of the Georgia Veterans' Class at nearby Chatham, is the first man ever to produce 100 bushels of corn on one acre in the County's history.

Besides his prize-winning corn crop, Farmer also has one of the best permanent pastures in the County.

The corn used was Florida W-1 which was planted in 36-inch rows, 12 inches in the drill.

Swine Prizes

BAXLEY—The Waycross Fair saw plenty of evidence of Appling County progress in the livestock world. Aubrey Olliff and son, of Bristol, took eight of the prizes offered in swine competition, which was judged by Byron Southwell, head of the livestock department of Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College, Tifton.

RELIGION IN GEORGIA

Baptists Flourish Like Tree by River

By THOMAS M. ELLIOTT

"Going from good to better" is what my Baptist friends say when they learn of my spending three days with 5,000 Presbyterian laymen, and now planning to spend four days with Baptist ministers and laymen of the Georgia Baptist Convention at Augusta.

Baptists in Georgia have flourished under the blessing of God like a tree planted by the river of water. From a corporal's guard of Baptists in Georgia 200 years ago we now have more than 1,000,000 of them. Indicative of their growth is the thrilling story of their support of Christian education. At first there was downright opposition to it. Finally, when collections were begun, they thought it a good start to get in $500 in a year. Last year they spent $815,533.89 for Christian education, and this year will spend more than $1,000,000. Their properties in Georgia devoted to Christian education have an estimated value of $8,140,950.25, as of today.

Latest news flashes are that the world did not come tumbling down, as predicted, and that no evidence is in sight that Christ will come back within the next 30 minutes. Don't be a quick-quack. Religion is reasonable.

Liberal Synod—Modernism bears fruits, as may be observed in the New York State Synod of the Presbyterian Church U. S. A. Presbyterianism in that Synod is said to be most liberal. Reports at the recent Syracuse Synodical Session showed a decrease in the number of churches from 826 to 776. During the past 25 years in that Synod 34 churches have merged into 17, six were transferred to other jurisdictions and 73 were dissolved. At the same time Sunday Schools declined from 146,749 to 100,114.

Honor Both Ways—Daily we hear it said that children should honor their parents. Do you hear anybody saying that parents should honor their children? Some children cannot honor their parents because their parents are dishonorable. Parents can bring shame and humiliation to many Georgia boys and girls cannot say with pride "That's my father, or mother." No boy or girl can be proud of parents in the chain gang, or parents that fight like hyenas, or are immoral in life.

Honoring should be done on both sides—parents and children. Juvenile delinquents? Sure, we have them. But the percentage of juvenile delinquents is lower than that of delinquent parents. Take a million men and women 20 to 45 years of age; then take a million young people 15 to 20 years of age; you will find the percentage of parental delinquents higher than that of the youngsters.

A thing that is immoral for a boy or girl is immoral for an older person. Every parent wants children that will do them honor; and those same boys and girls want parents that will do them honor. The law works both ways, or it doesn't work at all—it's a 50/50 proposition.

Quack-Quacks—Religion in Georgia might make better progress, were its pathway cleared of quack-quacks. Quack-quacks flourish in Georgia almost as well as in New York City and Los Angeles. A recent deluge of published communications indicate this. No matter what subject as to religion may be broached, there follows an upsurge of expressions as varied as the persons, often contradictory and far removed from the main line of truth. Two favorite themes pertain to the Holy Spirit and the second coming of Jesus Christ coming back at 5:47 p. m. on the return of Christ.

One Atlanta Dr. Quack-Quack ate a big supper of chitterlings and cornbread, drank six glasses of buttermilk. Before bedtime he topped it off with persimmon beer and sodapop. Then he dreamed a
